process of globalization Much of this revolves around the tensions and conflicts inherent in globalization with emphasis on political economy but at the expense of the human factor HF which places people at the centre of all discussions about globalization This volume brings the HF into the debate and examines to what extent this hitherto marginalized concept holds the key to providing a holistic understanding and contestation of globalization The volume develops a distinct concept or framework of the human factor examines the role and significance in global change from an interdisciplinary perspective analyzes the extent and significance in contemporary globalization discourse and provokes further debate about the unresolved disputes surrounding globalization The account will help readers navigate the minefields of the globalization debate

Simonson, David W. Arresting Development Craig Johnson, 2008-11-28 Scholars have become increasingly concerned about the impact of neo liberalism on the field of development Governments around the world have for some time been exposed to the forces of globalization and macro economic reform reflecting the power and influence of the world's principal international economic institutions and a broader commitment to the principles of neo classical economics and free trade Concerns have also been raised that neo classical theory now dominates the ways in which scholars frame and ask their questions in the field of development This book is about the ways in which ideologies shape the construction of knowledge for development A central theme concerns the impact of neo liberalism on contemporary development theory and research The book's main objectives are twofold One is to understand the ways in which neo liberalism has framed and defined the meta theoretical aims and assumptions of what is deemed relevant important and appropriate to the study of development A second is to explore the theoretical and ideological terms on which an alternative to neo classical theory may be theorized idealized and pursued By tracing the impact of Marxism postmodernism and liberalism on the study of development Arresting Development contends that development has become increasingly fragmented in terms of the theories and methodologies it uses to understand and explain complex and contextually specific processes of economic development and social change Outside of neo classical economics and related fields of rational choice the notion that social science can or should aim to develop general and predictive theories about development has become mired in a philosophical and political orientation that questions the ability of scholars to make universal or comparative statements about the nature of history cultural diversity and progress To advance the debate a case is made that development needs to re capture what the American sociologist Peter Evans once called the comparative institutional method At the heart of this approach is an inductive methodology that searches for commonalities and connections to broader historical trends and problems while at the same time incorporating divergent and potentially competing views about the nature of history culture and development This book will be of interest to scholars and students of Development Social and Political Studies and it will also be beneficial to professionals interested in the challenge of constructing knowledge for development

Transnational Migration and Human Security Thanh-Dam Truong, Des Gasper, 2011-06-07 The volume places the migration development security nexus in the field of transnational studies Rather than treating these three categories as self evident the essays excavate aspects of power and privilege built into their governing frameworks and conflicting rationales apparent in practices of control Bringing together diverse experiences and case studies the volume highlights the problematic nature of maintaining distinct and disconnected frameworks of governance It argues for a new approach that demonstrates the significance and usefulness of comparative ethics in conceptualising migration from a human centered and gendered perspective in order to address the multi faceted and multi dimensional nature and meanings of security

Anthropology and Development Emma Crewe, Richard Axelby, 2013 An exploration of anthropological perspectives on the cultures moralities and politics of the world of aid and development

Strategies for Urban Development in Leipzig, Germany Jean-Claude Garcia-Zamor, 2013-10-18 The demographic pressure caused by migration offers a considerable challenge for urban centers today. It results in an uneven development of the community and focus of urban planners becomes how to provide decent low cost housing and transportation in order to facilitate the integration of poorer residents among the rest of the community. In large industrialized countries the challenges of urban policy makers are made even more complicated since these governments depend on state or federal legislators to obtain the massive amounts of funding required for adequately addressing these local issues that are in global cause. The book analyzes the strategies for urban development in Leipzig, Germany and shows how civic leaders were able to harmonize planning and equity. They relied heavily on two interesting approaches in that process: the promotion of culture as a key component of urban development and the reconciliation of the inevitable process of gentrification with social equity. The book also looks at the globalization aspect of urban development, reviews research in social equity in urban development in Europe and the United States and describes sustainability as an important element of urban renaissance. Globalization and
