God And Utopia The Church In A Technological Civilization:

God and Utopia Gabriel Vahanian, 1977 The Ethical Challenge of Auschwitz and Hiroshima Darrell J.

Fasching, 1993-07-01 This book addresses the problem of religion ethics and public policy in a global technological civilization. It attempts to do what narrative ethicists have said cannot be done to construct a cross cultural ethic of human dignity, human rights and human liberation which respects the diversity of narrative traditions. It seeks to do this without succumbing to either ethical relativism or ethical absolutism. The author confronts directly the dominant narrative of our technological civilization, the Janus faced myths of Apocalypse or Utopia. Through this myth we view technology ambivalently as both the object of our dread and the source of our hope. The myth thus renders us ethically impotent, the very strength of our literal utopian euphoria sends us careening toward some literal apocalyptic final solution. The demonic narrative that dominated Auschwitz killing in order to heal is part of this Janus faced technological mythos that emerged out of Hiroshima. And it is this mythic narrative which underlies and structures much of public policy in our nuclear age. This book proposes a coalition of members of holy communities and secular groups organized to prevent any future eruptions of the demonic. Its goal is to construct a bridge not only over the abyss between religions East and West but also between religious and secular ethics.

A Theology for a Mediated God Dennis Ford, 2015-10-08 A Theology for a Mediated God introduces a new way to examine the shaping effects of media on our notions of God and divinity. In contrast to more conventional social scientific methodologies and conversations about the relationship between religion and media, Dennis Ford argues that the characteristics we ascribe to a medium can be extended and applied metaphorically to the characteristics we ascribe to God, just as earlier generations attempted to comprehend God through the metaphors of father, shepherd or mother. As a result, his work both challenges and bridges the gap between students of religion and media and theology.

Polyphonic Thinking and the Divine Jim Kanaris, 2013 Philosophy of religion is a highly diversified field. An apt description of it is zoo. It conjures imagery of a species wide cacophony of sights and sounds. While some bemoan what this description implies, contributors to this volume appreciate it. There is no reason why a zoo should intimate a den of confusion rather than an important condition of emergence and novelty. Polyphonic is the catchall term to capture this sentiment. It signals a way of thinking that resists the desire to siphon insight into manageable packets of information in the name of historicity and finitude. A polyphonic then is a variegated and discontinuous study that breaks with a tradition that desires continuity and unification without being erratic. This volume is an exercise in polyphonic thinking. Each contributing scholar develops ideas in connection with his or her research interests. Despite the fluctuation of themes, symmetry exists as each piece sounds off a core melody of religion and the divine. The book contributes to the advancement of current research in contemporary Continental philosophy of religion. By juxtaposing articles by cultural theorists and philosophers of religion, religionists and theologians, the book emphasizes the importance of interdisciplinary and polyphonic conversation to the development of matters of topical interest.

Romans: Three Exegetical Interpretations and the History of Reception Daniel Patte, 2018-07-26 In the first of a three volume work Daniel Patte presents three very different critical exegeses of Romans 1 arguing that all are equally legitimate and hermeneutically plausible By expanding upon and respecting the exegeses of many erudite scholars of the last two centuries Patte concludes that three families of vastly different critical interpretations are fully justified traditional philological and epistolary studies rhetorical and sociocultural studies and figurative studies of the coherence of Paul s teaching Arising from a long standing interdisciplinary investigation of many receptions of Romans in light of recent diversification of exegetical methodologies Patte concludes that the interpretation of a scriptural text necessarily involves making a choice among equally legitimate and plausible alternatives and second that this choice is always contextual and ethical When these points are denied by failing to respect the interpretations of others and absolutizing one's interpretation instead of being a scriptural blessing Romans becomes a deadly weapon against others heretics Jews Shoah and many others The result is a threefold commentary of Romans 1 that is unique in its scope and thorough going exegesis Global Democracy and Human Self-Transcendence Glen T. Abramson, 2008 A Circle in the Square tells the story of a project that by all the rules of logic should have failed but instead succeeded wildly In the 1960s a time of deep religious and existential crisis when the question of God's existence was being debated among people of all faiths a young man fresh out of graduate school began teaching an ancient religion to its own members Jews who had little or no connection to Judaism In 1964 when twenty three year old Rabbi Steven Riskin became the rabbi of Lincoln Square Synagogue on New York's Upper West Side he had no set plan Nevertheless he revolutionized Orthodox Judaism by making it attractive and relevant to American Jews Within these pages readers will learn about Rabbi Riskin's unprecedented approach to adult Jewish education and his steadfast commitment to reaching out to each and every Jew within and beyond the four walls of Lincoln Square Synagogue. Rabbi Riskin also emphasized the importance of bringing heaven down to earth and inviting God into the synagogue as a regular guest.
