Gebirgsjäger Gordon Williamson,2012-06-20 Few branches of the German armed forces were represented on so many fronts as the mountain infantrymen or Gebirgstruppen From the Blitzkrieg campaigns of 1940 through the invasions of the Balkans and Russia and the North African campaign to the defence of the Reich 1944 45 the Gebirgsj ger earned a reputation for reliability and courage Typically each trooper was a supremely fit individual the need to cover difficult terrain in full kit without the back up of a motorised baggage train demanded this This new volume examines the recruitment training and combat experiences of the common Gebirgsj ger German Mountain Troops in World War II Roland Kaltenegger,2005 Under the emblem of the Edelweis the soldiers of the German mountain corps fought on every front in the Second World War in the tundra of Lapland in the gorges of the Balkans on Crete in the High Caucasus at Monte Cassino and finally in Upper Italy and the Western Alps at the Semmering in Bavaria and Tyrol Mountain troops even formed part of Rommel s famed Afrikakorps During the war the army alone formed a total of eleven mountain divisions plus independent battalions and units The accomplishments of the Men of the Edelweis are still held in high regard by historians and military experts Armed forces and special units worldwide use their alpine and combat abilities as an example for in mountain fighting the weather and the terrain often caused more casualties than the enemy Through impressive photographs and brief insightful text this chronicle offers the reader and extraordinary view into the world of these elite troops who were always committed where the outcome hung in the balance German Mountain Troops United States. the culmination of some four decades of research and the support of many veterans and collectors describes the life operations and equipment of these specialist units A very illuminating study on some of WWII Germany's finest combat troops in their most successful actions of the early war period AMPS Supported by a great collection of colour and monochrome photographs one with the men wearing patterned tablecloths to stave off the cold in Norway is my favourite It will appeal to readers interested in the German army in the early phases of World War II Wargames Illustrated Hitler's Mountain Troops, 1939-1945 Ian Baxter,2011-02-11 A pictorial history of the Nazi special forces group their training and the action they saw during World War II Hitler's mountain troops or Gebirgsjager were a group of elite soldiers ready for battle whatever the conditions These mountain men were trained to ski climb and endure long marches survive appalling conditions and were given a role as crack shock troops Yet many of the campaigns in which the Gebirgsjager fought were on level ground where they had little opportunity to demonstrate their unique skills Instead they were invariably employed as assault infantry in conventional battle a role in which every individual trooper excelled but not one for which they had been trained They fought in virtually all theaters of World War II notably on the Eastern Front where operations took them into the Caucasus The Gebirgsjager were proud to wear the Edelweiss the famous badge that set them apart and distinguished them as Hitler's mountain men This superb book shows the Gebirgsjager in training and action from Poland Norway and France through Yugoslavia the Eastern Front and in the closing stages of the War German Mountain Troops 1942-45 Yves Béraud,2021-05-26 The author does a terrific job of outlining the many campaigns and areas where the German Mountain troops fought throughout the war and the unique challenges that some of these areas brought AMPS When World War II began the Wehrmacht had fifteen mountain divisions and a multitude of small units including some Austrian units that had been incorporated into the German army after the Anschluss These mountain units would operate in hostile environments on all fronts during World War II Due to their training equipment and adaptability the Gebirgstruppen would be deployed to fight in almost every theater In the last years of the war they would see action in North Africa Italy the Balkans Norway and Finland and in the West as the Allies pushed German forces back toward Berlin This book the culmination of four decades of research and the support of many veterans and collectors describes the uniform equipment and operations of these specialist units during the later years of World War II The text is complemented by period photographs taken at the front including many color photographs and modern photographs of uniform details Hitler's Mountain Troops Ian Baxter,2011 This volume shows the Gebirgsjager Hitler's elite mountain troops in training and action from Poland Norway and France through Yugoslavia the Eastern Front and in the closing stages of the Second World War German Mountain & Ski Troops 1939-45 Gordon Williamson,2012-05-20 Fighting in every theatre from the burning sands of North Africa to the icy wastes above the arctic circle the German Army's Gebirgstruppen troops were some of the most effective in the whole of the Wehrmacht Their esprit de corps and morale were extremely high and their commanders men such as Eduard Dietl the Hero of Narvik and

Julius Papa Ringel were idolised by their men Dietl himself was the first soldier of the Wehrmacht to be awarded the coveted Oakleaves to the Knights Cross of the Iron Cross In this book Gordon Williamson details the uniforms organisation and combat histories of these elite troops Weapons and Equipment of the German Mountain Troops in World War II Roland Kaltenecker,1995-01-01 Shown are the weaponry uniforms and other equipment of the Gebirgsjäger as used on all fronts throughout World War II The German Mountain Army Soldier of WWII Wade Krawczyk,Bart Jansen,2010-01-01 The Mountain Troops of the German Army in World War II were an elite of a special kind Unlike the Panzer units they did not field the most modern equipment of their day Unlike the Waffen SS they were not hand picked for their Nazi loyalty If anything the respect attracted by their special cap and their Edelweiss insignia was earned by rather old fashioned military virtues by sheer physical prowess in uniquely testing conditions The Gebirgsjäger had to be able to do what other soldiers did but in places where no other soldiers had the strength and the skills to go and often in weather no other soldiers could face

Gebirgsjäger vs Soviet Sailor David Greentree,2018-02-22 In 1941 44 Nazi Germany's Gebirgsjäger elite mountain troops clashed repeatedly with land based units of the Soviet Navy during the mighty struggle on World War II's Eastern Front Formed into naval infantry and naval rifle brigades some 350 000 of Stalin's sailors would serve the Motherland on land playing a key role in the defence of Moscow Leningrad and Sevastopol The Gebirgsjäger many among them veterans of victories in Norway and then Crete would find their specialist skills to be at a premium in the harsh terrain and bitter weather encountered at the northern end of the front line Operating many hundreds of miles north of Moscow the two sides endured savage conditions as they fought one another inside the Arctic Circle Featuring archive photographs specially commissioned artwork and expert analysis this is the absorbing story of the men who fought and died in the struggle for the Soviet Union's northern flank at the height of World War II Crete 1941 Peter Antill,2012-11-20 Operation Mercury the German airborne assault on the island of Crete in May 1941 was the first strategic use of airborne forces in history The assault began on 20 May with landings near the island's key airports and reinforcements the next day allowed the German forces to capture one end of the runway at Maleme By 24 May the Germans were being reinforced by air on a huge scale and on 1 June Crete surrendered This book describes how desperately close the battle had been and explains how German losses so shocked the Führer that he never again authorised a major airborne operation Lake Ilmen, 1942 Óscar González,Pablo Sagarra,2019-04-30 This WWII combat history sheds light on the Battle for Staraya Russa in which German soldiers and Spanish volunteers bitterly fought the Red Army In January 1942 in the Staraya Russa sector south of Lake Ilmen the 16th German Army clashed with Vasili Morozov's 11th Soviet Army for possession of the region Fighting alongside the Germans were the Spanish volunteers of the Blue Division Though the fighting lasted for nearly a month the battle for Staraya Russa is all but forgotten in studies of the Second World War's Eastern Front In Lake Ilmen 1942 the authors present a strategic framework of the battle from both the German and Russian perspectives They also recount the hard fighting and extreme weather endured by both sides bringing the human aspect of the conflict to life through a survey of individual volunteers who fought in it
