Gender Agency And Change Anthropological Perspectives:

Gender, Agency and Change Victoria Goddard, 2003-12-16 People create new opportunities and conditions in response to change and these responses are influenced by gender and age This collection examines responses to development and social and political change through this prism of gender

Gender, Agency and Change Victoria Goddard, 2003 In response to global change people create new opportunities and conditions and in their responses they are influenced by both gender and age In Gender Agency and Change the contributors illustrate the complexities involved in the constitution and performance of agency Such agency may be reflected in strategies of accommodation and adaption that can nevertheless produce new institutional arrangements Alternatively they may be directed towards the outright rejection of these processes The cases examined in this volume explore the ways in which different subjects engage in the reformulation of spaces roles and identities redefining the boundaries between and the content of the public and the private The examples also provide an account of how gendered discourses are deployed to convey new meanings a new sense of place and time confirming or challenging ideas of tradition and modernity This collection will be of particular interest to students of anthropology and gender studies

The Ashgate Research Companion to Feminist Legal Theory Vanessa E. Munro, 2016-04-01 As a distinct scholarly contribution to law feminist legal theory is now well over three decades old Those three decades have seen consolidation and renewal of its central concerns as well as remarkable growth dynamism and change This Companion celebrates the strength of feminist legal thought which is manifested in this dynamic combination of stability and change as well as in the diversity of perspectives and methodologies and the extensive range of subject matters which are now included within its ambit Bringing together contributors from across a range of jurisdictions and legal traditions the book provides a concise but critical review of existing theory in relation to the core issues or concepts that have animated and continue to animate feminism It provides an authoritative and scholarly review of contemporary feminist legal thought and seeks to contribute to the ongoing development of some of its new approaches perspectives and subject matters The Companion is divided into three parts dealing with Theory Concepts and Issues The first part addresses theoretical questions which are of significance to law but which also connect to feminist theory at the broadest and most interdisciplinary level The second part also draws on general feminist theory but with a more specific focus on debates about equality and difference race culture religion and sexuality The Issues section considers in detail more specific areas of substantive legal controversy

Gender in Cross-Cultural Perspective Adrienne E. Strong, Richard Powis, 2024-08-19 This fully updated new edition of Gender in Cross Cultural Perspective carefully introduces and responds to changes in anthropological approaches to and perspectives on gender With two new editors and new authors from the Global South and underrepresented communities it combines theoretically and ethnographically based chapters to examine gender roles and ideology around the world The book is divided thematically into five parts with the editors opening each section with a succinct introduction to the principal issues

The book retains some of the classic chapters while offering new contributions and extended discussions throughout on methodology. It also has entirely new contributions that reflect more recent developments in the discipline including more emphasis on LGBTQ communities, COVID and migration. This new edition also features additional support for teaching and learning including a film list and discussion questions that are now offered as supplemental online materials. The eighth edition of Gender in Cross Cultural Perspective continues to be an essential resource for undergraduate and graduate students encountering the anthropology of gender for the first time.

Postsocialism C.M. Hann, 2003-09-01 Social scientists did not predict the collapse of the socialist system in 1989-91 and their attempts to explain postsocialism have not been comprehensive. Economic disintegration and political instability have been documented but the deeper causes have often gone unnoticed. Consequently the solutions proffered such as the promotion of non governmental organisations as the foundations of civil society have so far brought little success. Postsocialism presents for the first time the anthropological responses to these problems which are all grounded in intensive fieldwork. The authors demonstrate that even when local conditions are specific the view from below illuminates macro trends. A wide range of topics are discussed including the role of social and cultural capital in determining the winners of rural decollectivization, the devaluation of blue collar labour, the position of Gypsies, the viability of multicultural models in situations of religious differences and ethnic violence, new patterns of consumption in China, the revival of rituals and the healing of socialist trauma.

Muslim Women and Shari'ah Councils S. Bano, 2012-11-14 Using original empirical data and critiquing existing research Samia Bano explores the experience of British Muslim women who use Shari'ah councils to resolve marital disputes. She challenges the language of community rights and claims for legal autonomy in matters of family law showing how law and community can empower as well as restrict women.

Beyond NGO-ization Kerstin Jacobsson, Steven Saxonberg, 2016-04-15 The celebrations marking the 20th anniversary of the fall of the Berlin Wall provoked a debate on the outcomes of the transition process in the post communist countries including a debate on the functioning of civil society. This provided a good opportunity for researchers to collect new data and revise the discourse on collective action and the dynamics of civil society in these countries. Jacobsson and Saxonberg's collection of essays looks at social movements and their forms of mobilization and organization as well as action repertoires in relation to the social context and their success or failure. The book meets an important need in the discourse on post communist social movements by going beyond the usual discourse about the weak and non participatory civil society in the post communist context. This book gives a nuanced and updated view of social movements in post communist Europe by looking at the cases of relatively successful mobilization by examining groups that have often been neglected in the discourse on social movements and civil society including animal rights groups, racist movements and non feminist family organizations and by giving a deeper analysis of the different strategies that civil society organizations and groups can use. Rather than expecting social movements in post communist Europe to follow the same patterns and operate in the same fashion as in Western Europe this volume shows that a wider view of contentious action is needed in order to understand the variety of strategies employed by collective actors operating in this context Workplace Flexibility

Kathleen Christensen, Barbara Schneider, 2011-03-15 Although today's family has changed the workplace has not and the resulting one size fits all workplace has become profoundly mismatched to the needs of an increasingly diverse and varied workforce As changes in the composition of the workforce exert new demands on employers considerable attention is being paid to how workplaces can be structured more flexibly to achieve the goals of employers and employees Workplace Flexibility brings together sixteen essays authored by leading experts in economics demography political science law sociology anthropology and management Collectively they make the case for workplace flexibility as well as examine existing business practices and public policy regarding flexibility in the United States Europe Australia and Japan Workplace Flexibility underscores the need to realign the structure of work in time and place with the needs of the changing workforce Considering the positive and negative consequences for employer and employee alike the authors argue that although there is not an easy solution to creating and implementing flexibility practices in the United States or abroad redesigning the workplace is essential if today's workers are effectively to meet the demands of life and work and if employers are successfully able to attract and retain top talent and improve performance Home Truths Sarah Pink, 2020-05-26 Homes are powerfully defined by smells sounds textures and objects all of which reflect how people live their everyday lives From spray painting the toilet wall to relaxing in the bath the products we use speak volumes about who we are how we relate to others and who we want to be Based on extensive fieldwork this fascinating book explores the intimate material and sensory spaces of the home to uncover how gender roles are performed within our personal private worlds Pink shows how everyday items ranging from perfumes to soap powder imprint and reinforce daily experiences and a sense of identity How has the home been affected by the fact that more and more women now go to work and increasingly more men spend time engaged in domestic tasks How do more traditional family centred homes compare with those belonging to diverse family forms and people living alone What does a study of domestic gender tell us about how change occurs Answering these questions and many more Pink combines the most recent approaches in gender studies and material culture to show how everyday activities can be deeply revealing of gender roles in the 21st century Socialising Complexity Sheila Kohring, Stephanie Wynne-Jones, 2007-11-30 Socialising Complexity introduces the concept of complexity as a tool rather than a category for understanding social formations This new take on complexity moves beyond the traditional concern with what constitutes a complex society and focuses on the complexity inherent in various social forms through the structuring principles created within each society The aims and themes of the book can thus be summarized as follows to introduce the idea of complexity as a tool which is pertinent to the understanding of all types of society rather than an exclusionary type of society in its own right to examine concepts that can enhance our interpretation of societal complexity such as heterarchy materialization and contextualization These concepts are applied at different scales and in different ways illustrating their utility in a variety of different cases to reestablish social structure as a topic of study within archaeology which can be profitably studied by proponents of both processual and post processual methodologies

Agency and Identity in the Ancient Near East Sharon R. Steadman, Jennifer C. Ross, 2016-04-01 Agency theory examines the relationship between individuals or groups when one party is doing work on behalf of another Agency and Identity in the Ancient Near East offers a theoretical study of agency and identity in Near Eastern archaeology an area which until now has been largely ignored by archaeologists The book explores how agency theory can be employed in reconstructing the meaning of spaces and material culture how agency and identity intersect and how the availability of a textual corpus may impact on the agency approach Ranging from the Neolithic to the Islamic period Agency and Identity in the Ancient Near East covers sites located in Turkey Iraq Syria Jordan Palestine and Israel The volume includes contributions from philology art history computer simulation studies materials science and the archaeology of settlement and architecture

The Force of Fashion in Politics and Society Beverly Lemire, 2016-12-05 Throughout history fashion has emerged as one of the most powerful driving forces determining the political economic and social ramifications of the production distribution and circulation of goods Indeed fashion especially in relation to clothing and textiles shapes the relationship between self and society in unique ways In this light the collected papers in this volume position fashion as the lens the critical mediating force through which to analyse and understand cultural economic and political shifts within a broad spectrum of societies in Europe Asia Africa and America from the seventeenth to twenty first centuries Topics include a seventeenth century failing fashion region the material politics of marketing American abolitionist fashions the construction of a fashionable ethos for French perfumes and the use and meanings of clothing and textiles in the politics of Nigerian silk robes and early modern domestic d cor in Europe This volume represents an important shift in scholarship towards a more in depth understanding of the role of fashion in early modern and modern times and will appeal to international readers interested in material culture fashion consumer studies and cultural anthropology among other areas

Property Rights, Intersectionality, and Women's Empowerment in Nepal Pradhan, Rajendra, Meinen-Dick, Ruth Suseela, Theis, Sophie, 2018-01-05 In this paper we explore how different norms around property rights affect the empowerment of women of different social positions over the life cycle We first review the conceptual foundations of property empowerment and intersectionality and then present the methodology and empirical findings from ethnographic field work in Nepal Going beyond formal ownership of property we look at changes in property rights over personal and joint property at different stages of women s lives Finally the paper makes recommendations for how research and development projects especially in South Asia can avoid misinterpreting asset and empowerment data by incorporating nuance around the concepts of property rights over the household life cycle

Regulating Romance Shanti Parikh, 2016-04-11 Drawing on ten years of ethnographic research two hundred fifty interviews and over three hundred youth love letters author Shanti Parikh uses lively vignettes to provide a rare window into young people's heterosexual desires and practices in Uganda. In chapters entitled 'Unbreak my heart I miss you like a desert missing rain' and 'You're just playing with my head' she invites readers into the world of secret longings, disappointments and anxieties of young Ugandans as they grapple with everyday difficulties while creatively imagining romantic futures and possibilities. Parikh also examines the unintended consequences of Uganda's aggressive HIV campaigns that thrust sexuality and anxieties about it into the public sphere. In a context of economic precarity and generational tension that constantly complicates young people's notions of consumption-based romance, communities experience the dilemmas of protecting and policing young people from reputational and health dangers of sexual activity. 'They arrested me for loving a school girl' is the title of a chapter on controlling delinquent daughters and punishing defiant boyfriends for attempting to undermine patriarchal authority by asserting their adolescent romantic agency. Sex education programs struggle between risk and pleasure amidst morally charged debates among international donors and community elders transforming the youthful female body into a platform for public critique and concern. The many sides of this research constitute an eloquently executed critical anthropology of intervention.

Criminal Femmes Fatales in American Hardboiled Crime Fiction Maysaa Husam Jaber, 2016-02-02 This book fills a gap in both literary and feminist scholarship by offering the first major study of femme fatales in hardboiled crime fiction. Maysaa Jaber shows that the criminal literary figures in the genre open up powerful spaces for imagining female agency in direct opposition to the constraining forces of patriarchy and misogyny.

The Everyday Violence of Forced Displacement Miriam Geerse, 2023-10-16 The Everyday Violence of Forced Displacement: Memory, Community and Identity Politics among Internally Displaced Kurds in Turkey is based on ethnographic research in four Istanbul neighborhoods in the early 2000s and after. Miriam Geerse focuses on individuals and families that tried to sustain meaningful lives in an urban context marked by political and structural violence. Geerse argues that forces other than war and forced displacement instilled in many forced migrants a pressing need and desire to keep hammering home the price and pain of displacement. Much of this book then bears witness to the formation of an oppositional consciousness. Geerse's analysis of the mobilization of social capital in times of illness and social conflict offers an understanding of how a dispersed community of people who share the same stories function in an inhospitable urban environment. In laying bare the interconnections between experiences before, during and after forced displacement and by focusing on people's narratives and their experiences, Geerse provides insight to activists striving to improve the position of Kurds, to academics studying the impact of forced migration and other forms of political violence on civilians and to all those who argue for a more balanced view of the recent history of Turkey.

Nostalgia for the Modern Esra Özyürek, 2006-08-30 An ethnographic analysis of the ways that during the 1990s Turkish citizens began to express nostalgia for the secularist and nationalist foundations of the Turkish Republic.

African Sexualities Sylvia Tamale, 2011-06-23 A groundbreaking book accessible but scholarly by African activists. It uses research life stories and artistic expression including essays case studies poetry news clips songs fiction memoirs letters interviews short film scripts and photographs to examine dominant and deviant sexualities and investigate the intersections between sex power masculinities and femininities It also opens a space particularly for young people to think about African sexualities in different ways Gendering Religion and Politics H. Herzog,A. Braude,2009-07-20 The aim of this book is to suggest an interdisciplinary perspective on the complex relations of gender religion and politics in light of paradigmatic shifts in theories of modernity and the growing body of studies on gender and religion From Clans to Co-ops Theodoros Rakopoulos,2017-11 Introduction Problems with cooperatives The anthropology of co ops the Mafia and the Sicilian lens Cooperatives and the historical anti Mafia movement Worldviews of labour legality and food ideologies The limits of bad kinship Sicilian anti Mafia families The use of gossip setting cooperative boundaries Wage is male but land is a woman Community troubles cooperative conundrum Divided by land Mafia and anti Mafia proximity Conclusion the private life of political cooperativism
