ANN WEATHERALL, MARIA STUBBE,
JANE SUNDERLAND AND JUDITH BAXTER

Introduction Ann Weatherall and Maria Stubbe

This chapter reports on a symposium at the Fifth International Gender and Language Association (IGALA5) Conference held in Wellington, New Zealand in July 2008<sup>1</sup>. This symposium brought together feminist researchers from a variety of methodological perspectives with the aim of generating a more nuanced understanding of the contributions of different approaches to the study of language and gender, in particular, feminist methodologies emerging out of the traditions of conversation analysis and critical discourse analysis. These were selected as the focus for the symposium because of the emergence of feminist conversation analysis and interactional research alongside critical discourse analysis in the gender and language field. An issue to be addressed is whether it is possible to combine a fine-grained analysis of language in interaction with a critical politics that seeks to disrupt enduring patterns of social inequality.

Members of the panel were invited to consider a particular data excerpt from the perspective of conversation analysis (CA) and three other critical methodologies commonly used by feminist language researchers, namely critical discourse analysis (CDA), post-structuralist discourse analysis (PDA) and sociocultural linguistics/interactional sociolinguistics (IS), in order to facilitate an explicit comparison of these approaches.<sup>2</sup> A New Zealand talkback radio call in which a gender and sexuality issue was topical provided the empirical focus for the session.

The method is utilized in several disciplines sharing an interest in social interaction like anthropology, linguistics, social psychology and sociology and it has been applied to a great variety of languages and types of interaction. Conversation Analysis then is coming of age as a truly comparative enterprise. This volume presents and discusses comparative approaches to analyzing interactional practices and structures. The contributors to the volume have their background in sociology, linguistics and logopedics. They offer comparative analyses of activity types, participant roles and identities, displays of emotion and design of actions such as questions and corrections. The languages covered by the chapters include English, Finnish, German and Swedish. This volume is of interest to all those interested in the research of language and social interaction. Interactional Approach to Cinematic Discourse Neda Chepinchikj, 2022-07-19 This book analyses and describes a segment of Woody Allen's cinematic discourse focusing specifically on the performed or diegetic interactions between actors in various roles in some of his films. It is a case study of Woody Allen's cinematic discourse encompassing the on-screen performed interaction in the films at the level of the story world. The analysis focuses on speech film dialogues in both its verbal and prosodic forms as well as non-verbal types of interaction including gaze and gesture taking a social interactional approach and using multimodal conversation analysis as a theoretical framework and analytical tool. The texts under study are segments from five films by Woody Allen and the analysed interactions take place between male and female interactants which allows further examination of on-screen interactions via a gender lens. The book aims to bridge the gap between the disciplines of applied linguistics and cinema studies and offer linguistic insights into performed interactions from a multimodal point of view. It will be equally relevant to linguists who are interested in how verbal and non-verbal language is used in cinematic discourse as well as to film workers especially actors, directors and screenwriters.
