Generating Texts:

Generating Texts Sharon Cadman Seelig, 1996 In Generating Texts Sharon Cadman Seelig tests traditional notions of genre by analyzing parallels between works that confound existing categories Seelig pairs three seventeenth century prose works with three other works each of a later century Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy with Sterne's Tristram Shandy Browne's Religio Medici with Thoreau's Walden and Donne's Devotions upon Emergent Occasions with Eliot's Four Quartets Proceeding from her authors similarities in method and common sets of assumptions such as concern with process and discovery time and eternity or the nature of the self she uncovers parallels showing that genre is not simply a set of formal features but rather a particular way of seeing the world that grows out of authorial attitude impulse and occasion In addition to its obvious appeal to students and scholars interested in Sterne Thoreau Eliot or seventeenth century literature Generating Texts should interest literary scholars and students more generally particularly those concerned with the interconnections between literary periods and genres Seelig has written an original and accessible contribution to the field of genre study

Generating Natural Language Descriptions With Integrated Text and Examples Vibhu O. Mittal, 2022-11-30 This book discusses issues in generating coherent effective natural language descriptions with integrated text and examples This is done in the context of a system for generating documentation dynamically from the underlying software representations Good documentation is critical for user acceptance of any complex system Advances in areas such as knowledge based systems natural language and multimedia generation now make it possible to investigate the automatic generation of documentation from the underlying knowledge bases This has several important benefits it is always accessible it is always current because the documentation reflects the underlying representation and it can take the communication context such as the user into account The work described in this book compiles results from cognitive psychology and education on effective presentation of examples as well as work on computational generation of examples from intelligent tutoring systems It also takes into account computational learning from examples and a characterization of good examples for just this purpose Issues arising from these research areas as well as issues coming from the author's own corpus analysis of instructional and explanatory texts are discussed in the context of generating natural language descriptions of software constructs A text planner is used for a hierarchy of communicative goals Examples are treated as an integral part of the planning process and their interaction with text is represented at all stages The strengths and limitations of this approach are also discussed Although the focus of this book is the generation of natural language descriptions a similar set of issues need to be addressed in the generation of multimedia descriptions This book will be of interest to all researchers working in the areas of natural language interfaces intelligent tutoring systems documentation and technical writing and educational psychology

Reading Computer-Generated Texts Leah Henrickson, 2021-02-11 Natural language generation NLG is the process wherein computers produce output in readable human languages Such output takes many forms including news articles sports reports prose fiction and poetry These computer generated texts are often indistinguishable from human written texts and they are increasingly prevalent NLG is here and it is everywhere However readers are often unaware that what they are reading has been computer generated This Element considers how NLG conforms to and confronts traditional understandings of authorship and what it means to be a reader It argues that conventional conceptions of authorship as well as of reader responsibility change in instances of NLG What is the social value of a computer generated text What does NLG mean for modern writing publishing and reading practices Can an NLG system be considered an author This Element explores such question while presenting a theoretical basis for future studies Text Generation Kathleen

McKeown,1992-06-26 Kathleen McKeown explores natural language text and presents a formal analysis of problems in a computer program TEXT International Conference on Innovative Approaches to the Application of Digital facing modern education Creating Texts Walter Nash, David Stacey, 2014-09-25 Creating Texts emphasises a practical approach to composition and enables students to understand what is involved in the creation of a text and to learn from the practice of other writers. Extensively rewritten and updated from Walter Nash's earlier volume Designs in Prose, attention is paid to the general theory of composition in both traditional and original terms so that students are made familiar with the basic resources of composition in grammar and in the lexicon. The essence of every chapter is the discussion of examples of text, sometimes devised by the authors but more often drawn from the work of authors writing in diverse styles of English. This practical approach is most evident in the final section of the book where detailed suggestions for projects and exercises reinforce the connection between theory and practice and encourage students to develop their creative sense and to adapt their style of writing to fit the particular audience and context. In addition, this section is cross-referenced to the main text to allow students to consult easily the relevant chapter.

User Modelling in Text Generation Cecile Paris, 2015-12-17 This book addresses the issue of how the user's level of domain knowledge affects interaction with a computer system. It demonstrates the feasibility of incorporating a model of user's domain knowledge into a natural language generation system.

Proceedings of the 25th European Conference on Knowledge Management Dr. Nora Obermayer, Dr. Andrea Bencsik, Intercultural Language Use and Language Learning Eva Alcon Soler, Maria Pilar Safont Jordà, 2007-05-24 Eva Alcon Soler, Maria Pilar Safont Jordà, Universitat Jaume I, Spain. The main purpose of the present book is to broaden the scope of research on the development of intercultural communicative competence. Bearing this purpose in mind, English learners are considered as intercultural speakers who share their interest for engaging in real life communication. According to Byram and Fleming (1998), the intercultural speaker is someone with knowledge of one or more cultures and social identities and who enjoys discovering and maintaining relationships with people from other cultural backgrounds although s/he has not been formally trained for that purpose. Besides possessing knowledge of at least two cultures is the case of many learners in bilingual or multilingual communities. In these contexts, the objective of language learning should then focus on developing intercultural competence which in turn may involve promoting language diversity while encouraging English as both a means and an end of instruction (see Alcon in this volume). This is the idea underlying the volume which further sustains Kramsch's (1998) argument against the native/non-native dichotomy. Following that author, we also believe that in a multilingual world where learners may belong to more than one speech community, their main goal is not to become a native speaker of English but to use this language as a tool for interaction among many other languages and cultures.

Paris,William R. Swartout,William C. Mann,2013-03-14 One of the aims of Natural Language Processing is to facilitate the use of computers by allowing their users to communicate in natural language There are two important aspects to person machine communication understanding and generating While natural language understanding has been a major focus of research natural language generation is a relatively new and increasingly active field of research This book presents an overview of the state of the art in natural language generation describing both new results and directions for new research The principal emphasis of natural language generation is not only to facilitate the use of computers but also to develop a computational theory of human language ability In doing so it is a tool for extending clarifying and verifying theories that have been put forth in linguistics psychology and sociology about how people communicate A natural language generator will typically have access to a large body of knowledge from which to select information to present to users as well as number of expressing it Generating a text can thus be seen as a problem of our ways decision making under multiple constraints constraints from the propositional knowledge at hand from the linguistic tools available from the communicative goals and intentions to be achieved from the audience the text is aimed at and from the situation and past discourse Researchers in generation try to identify the factors involved in this process and determine how best to represent the factors and their dependencies Writing and Cognition Mark Torrance,Luuk van Waes,David Galbraith,2007-01-01 Writing is central to the functioning of developed societies However the psychological processes that allow us to transform complex ideas into language and express them on paper or computer screen are poorly understood Writing and Cognition goes some way towards remedying this It describes new and diverse work both by field leaders and by newer researchers exploring the complex relationships between language the mind and the environments in which writers work Chapters range in focus from a detailed analysis of single word production to the writing of whole texts They explore the basic processes involved in writing the effects of writing on thought and how these vary across different educational and workplace contexts Quality Research in Literacy and Science Education Mack C. Shelley,Larry D. Yore,Brian B. Hand,2008-12-30 Statistical models attempt to describe and quantify relationships between variables In the models presented in this chapter there is a response variable sometimes called dependent variable and at least one predictor variable sometimes called independent or explanatory variable When investigating a possible cause and effect type of relationship the response variable is the putative effect and the predictors are the hypothesized causes Typically there is a main predictor variable of interest other predictors in the model are called covariates Unknown covariates or other independent variables not controlled in an experiment or analysis can affect the dependent or outcome variable and mislead the conclusions made from the inquiry Bock Velleman given the model p is the probability that a relationship is seen by mere chance The smaller the p value the more confident we can be that the pattern seen in the data is not random In the type of models examined here the R measures the proportion of the variation in the response variable that is explained by the predictors specified in the model if R is close to 1 then almost all the variation in the response variable has been explained This measure is also known as the multiple correlation coefficient Statistical studies can be grouped into two types experimental and observational Proceedings of International Conference on Communication and Computational Technologies Sandeep Kumar,Saroj Hiranwal,Ritu Garg,S.
