Generative Interpretation Of Dialect A Study Of Modern Greek Phonology:

The Generative Interpretation of Dialect Brian Newton, 1972-12-14 A description of the phonology of modern Greek dialects from the point of view of their historical development in so far as this may be reconstructed from their modern form An introductory chapter explains the basis of the approach adopted and makes the book readily intelligible to the students of Greek with no special training in linguistics Throughout the work the historical development of numerous sample words is presented in order to illustrate the rules

Language Variation □ European perspectives II

Stavroula Tsipplakou, Marilena Karyolemou, Pavlos Pavlou, 2009-11-19 This volume contains a selection of papers from the 4th International Conference on Language Variation in Europe ICLaVE 4 which was held at the University of Cyprus from June 17th 19th 2007 The variety of theoretical frameworks and methodological perspectives from Generative Grammar Word Grammar Government Phonology Optimality Theory and Distributed Morphology to quantitative Labovian and ethnographic approaches to variation and change real and apparent time studies phonetic analysis and metatheoretical papers on quantitative analysis as well as the sheer number of linguistic varieties examined attest both to the breadth and scope of the conference and to its status as a meeting place for synchronic and diachronic linguistic description and theoretical exploration One of the major themes running through the volume is the explicit concern with methodological refinement Almost all the contributions address issues of methodology in various aspects of data collection and analysis be they questionnaire surveys and interview data spoken or written corpora real and apparent time studies dialect atlases and maps statistical models or software Alongside methodological issues and especially with regard to the treatment of historical data many of the papers in the volume explicitly address theoretical issues for example the relative weighting of linguistic systemic cognitive and discourse factors in the exploration of language variation and change

Structuring Lexical Data and Digitising Dictionaries, 2024-10-28 In order to guarantee open access and full searchability research in historical lexicography and lexicology must follow the same directions as the evolution of the Internet which has moved from hypertext based resources to more significative services and products stored and disseminated through databases and more recently through knowledge bases Against this background this book addresses specific questions like What is involved in the digitisation of linguistic data What annotation systems can give rise to datasets compatible with knowledge bases What standards are needed to reach full searchability What sources and methods can be used to gather the lemmas of a historical dictionary What determines the obsolescence of lexicographical resources

New Perspectives in Greek Linguistics Nikolaos Lavidas, Elissavet Nouchoutidou, Marietta Sionti, 2020-10-27 New Perspectives in Greek Linguistics is a selection of papers presenting some of the ongoing research in Greek Linguistics The contributions in this volume which have their origin in the 4th Athens

Postgraduate Conference in Linguistics refer to various theoretical frameworks and cover a wide range of topics from phonology of dialects to acquisition of syntax however they share the common reference to Greek and Theoretical Linguistics The second common feature is a tendency to investigate already known problems using new methods considering different factors from previous research or introducing innovative ideas The volume is dedicated to Professor Gaberell Drachman and Professor Angeliki Malikouti Drachman as a small token of gratitude for their ceaseless presence and their contribution to Theoretical Linguistics to Greek Linguistics and to postgraduate studies in Linguistics in Greece This volume is of particular interest to linguists working on various areas of Greek Linguistics especially those who would like to keep up with ongoing research It presents an opportunity to see the application of linguistic theory in Greek and the current comparative research

The Sound Structure of Modern Irish Raymond Hickey, 2015-02-17 The Sound Structure of Modern Irish contains a comprehensive description of the phonology of Irish Based on the main forms of the language it offers an analysis of the segments and the processes in its sound system Each section begins with a description of the area of phonology which is the subject such as stress patterns phonotactics epenthesis or metathesis and then proceeds to consider the special aspects of this subject from a theoretical and typological perspective The book pays particular attention to key processes in the sound system of modern Irish The two most important of these are palatalisation and initial mutation phenomena which are central to Irish and the analysis of which has consequences for general phonological theory The other main emphasis in the book is on a typological comparison of several different languages all of which show palatalisation and or initial mutation as part of their systems The different forms of Celtic Slavic languages Romance dialects and languages along with languages such as Finnish Fula Nivkh and Southern Paiute are considered to find out how processes which are phonetic in origin external sandhi can become functionalised and integrated into the morphosyntactic system of a language

The Turkish Dialects of Trabzon: Analysis Bernt Brendemoen, 2002 The dialects spoken in Trabzon on the Eastern Black Sea Coast are the Anatolian dialects that have preserved the most archaic features At the same time they are the ones that display the greatest number of innovations due to the influence of other languages in the region The archaisms indicate that the first speakers of Turkish must have settled in the area more than a hundred years before the Ottoman conquest i e in the 14th century although historical sources give no information on Turkish settlements at that time The main aim of this study is to analyze the Trabzon dialects synchronically and diachronically and to explain the features that distinguish them from other Anatolian dialects The study also makes a hypothesis about the turkization of the area The second volume contains dialect texts which constitute the material for the analyses in the first volume These texts which have been recorded and transcribed by the author are provided with numerous foot notes and give a unique impression of the folkloristic and historical richness of the region

The Phonology of Coronals T. Alan Hall, 1997-01-01 This study investigates the phonological behavior of coronal consonants i e sounds produced with the tip or blade of the tongue The analysis draws on data from over 120 languages and dialects A definition of coronality is proposed that rejects the current view holding that palatals are positively marked for this feature The feature coronal is assumed to be privative the natural class of noncoronals is captured with the feature peripheral which dominates labial and velar in feature geometry The book contains a detailed examination of the phonological patterning of segments belonging to each of the six coronal subplaces i e interdental dental alveolar retroflex palatoalveolar and alveopalatal A universal set of features is posited that accounts for these facts Inventories of coronal consonants are treated in depth and impossible contrasts are accounted for with several if then statements The present study also contains a lengthy analysis of the phonology of rhotic consonants A set of features is postulated which captures natural classes involving rhotics and nonrhotic consonants and which distinguishes the various stricture types among rhotics i e trill vs tap vs approximant The Role of Speech Perception in Phonology Keith Johnson, Elizabeth Hume, 2024-04-02 Do human auditory perceptual abilities shape language sound structures This title presents a collection of articles on the role of speech perception in phonology by leading phonologists phoneticians and cognitive psychologists It presents a range of views on the linguistic implications of speech perception research Proceedings of Methods XIII Barry Heselwood, 2010 This volume of papers from the 13th International Conference on Methods in Dialectology held at the University of Leeds in 2008 collects together current research and recent methodological developments in the study of dialects by new and established scholars It is organised into themed sections reporting on historical dialectology dialect literature the production of dialect maps and atlases and the collection and organisation of material for dialect dictionaries and corpora Perceptual dialectology and dialect intelligibility are also featured and there are linguistic analyses of dialectal data from many language varieties
