Global sourcing: performance and competition Paul Scheffler,2015-09-01 In today s times more and more companies pursue global sourcing strategies in some form and to some extent The most prominent reason for the increased interest in global sourcing is the idea to benefit from factor cost differences between sourcing regions However recent research indicates that cross border sourcing is no panacea to generate cost savings There are situations in which international sourcing does not lead to the intended price reductions or even causes expensive back-sourcing activities Accordingly the ambiguous image of global sourcing is the point of departure for the dissertation at hand Thus the main purpose of this thesis is to explore how global sourcing can contribute to a firm s purchasing performance The results indicate that the accumulation of social capital between the buying organisation and its international suppliers can increase the sourcing success However given the limited amount of resources for those intimate buyer supplier relationships close partnerships cannot be maintained with all suppliers Consequently the research at hand points in the direction that global sourcing can be a means to increase the intensity of competition in supply markets facilitating the pursuit of more adversarial relationships

Summary This thesis intends to answer three questions First what is a lead market second what constitutes a lead market and third how companies can harness lead markets to generate global innovations Considering the international cross border diffusion of innovations one can observe that a particular technological design such as the facsimile machine the personal computer or the mobile cellular telephone is often adopted by one country or region much earlier than by other countries which subsequently follow this country which I will call the lead market A lead market is defined as a country that adopts an innovation that is subsequently adopted worldwide When different designs of an innovation compete internationally the design preferred in the lead market becomes the global dominant design The study suggests a theoretical explanation for the phenomena of lead markets and collects empirical evidence from a detailed case study of the cellular mobile tele of an innovation design adopted first phone industry The international diffusion by the lead market i e subsequent adoption of an innovation design preferred in the lead market by other countries can be put down to the special market context in the lead market The market context includes demand preferences the environmental condition and the degree of competition Multinational firms are often confronted not only with varying market acceptance of new products and processes from country to country but with national preferences for particular specifications of an innovation i e

The International Taxation System Andrew Lymer, John Hasseldine, 2002-08-31 International taxation is a vital issue for a growing number of business and individuals across the world The need to understand how the international system of taxation works is therefore a subject of importance to many people The International Taxation System provides this understanding by bringing together experts from the most important fields in the subject who have each authored chapters especially for this book They each provide brief structured and easy to understand explanations of the key concepts edited together into one volume to provide a unique very readable guide to the field While this text is aimed at masters or advanced undergraduate level students it will also be of interest to those requiring a professional understanding of the topic Each chapter introduces a different aspect of the international taxation system explains the important issues to be understood in each case and provides suggestions for discussion and further reading

Outsourcing Michael J. Mol, 2007-09-06 Outsourcing has become one of the key restructuring tools for companies seeking to boost their growth and business performance As the outsourcing phenomenon has mushroomed so a range of academic studies have sought to define and describe a unifying theoretical model Outsourcing Design Process and Performance draws upon managerial economic sociological historical and psychological perspectives to bring about an understanding of how outsourcing design and the outsourcing process feed into the performance of firms Blending empirical insights from a range of international cases and large scale statistical tests with existing theoretical perspectives the author argues that a negative curvilinear relationship exists between outsourcing and firm performance A critical analysis of current outsourcing strategies together with a discussion of future trends offers a new agenda for academic researchers and business managers alike
