Higher Education in the Global Age Daniel Araya, Peter Marber, 2013-11-20 Discussions on globalization now routinely focus on the economic impact of developing countries in Asia Africa the Middle East the former Soviet Union and Latin America Only twenty five years ago many developing countries were largely closed societies Today the growing power of emerging markets is reordering the geopolitical landscape On a purchasing power parity basis emerging economies now constitute half of the world's economic activity Financial markets too are seeing growing integration Asia now accounts for 13 of world stock markets more than double that of just 15 years ago Given current trajectories most economists predict that China and India alone will account for half of global output by 2050 almost a complete return to their positions prior to the Industrial Revolution How is higher education shaping and being shaped by these massive tectonic shifts As education rises as a geopolitical priority it has converged with discussions on economic policy and a global labor market As part of the Routledge Studies in Emerging Societies series this edited collection focuses on the globalization of higher education particularly the increasing symbiosis between advanced and developing countries Bringing together senior scholars journalists and practitioners from around the world this collection explores the relatively new and changing higher education landscape the curriculum a holistic view of learning in the context of the need to develop the global self what the impact on non academic practice will be if universities as institutions are to enable these changes ways in which the broader student community can transform to offer an experience which is more supportive of the development of global selves Linking theoretical perspectives to present a model of learning as change this book will be of great interest to those working in higher education and particularly to anyone involved in policy design and the delivery of the student experience
