Globalization and National Security: Unraveling the Multifaceted Nexus

Ezeja Ijeoma Irene

Department of Public Administration Kampala International University Uganda

ABSTRACT

Globalization, a complex process, introduced by Swapsy in 2006, is understood as being more than economic integration impacting political, social, and cultural dimensions at the global scale. The security at the national level is the main focus of this paper. The paper looks at the following issues including; state sovereignty, the dynamics of the military, economic stability, social unity, environmental sustainability and the controlling information. With modernity, the idea of sovereignty is put to test; states need to find the balance between their autonomy and global involvement. The interlink age of societies influence the dynamics of military affairs, economic security, social peace and stability, and environmental sustainability. Information crossing borders makes the question of national security; it causes trouble to control mechanisms. Economic globalization has created differences against developed and capital rich countries with the aid of the transnational entities. The main focus of the study lays on the necessity of hybrid strategy in order to respond to the shifting features of national security which are present in the context of globalized world.

Keywords: Globalization, Security of a State, Sovereignty, Military Dynamics, Stability of Economy, Societal Integration, and Environmental Security.

INTRODUCTION

The concept of globalization is a complex and multipronged one that causes it unforeseeable geopolitical and social changes. Globalization was a coinage by [1], which means the harmonization of economic, political, social and cultural values all over the world without boundaries. This profound adjustment permeates the socioeconomic and political landscapes at large, even profoundly shaping the fabric of cultural identities and societal structures, as put forth by [2]. The paper attempts a detailed investigation of globalization's deep influence on national security issues as its relations become more complex and linked to a range of mentioned statehood features. A very important factor of the discussion would be the syndrome of the state sovereignty. In the light of the interdependence nations are building, the traditional idea of complete sovereignty meets its challenges. States should find a way to pursue the interests of their country while ensuring that there is still a reasonable degree of autonomy. Not only that but also, paper analyzes the role of globalization in the military environment. It suggests how the economy that is well-connected and the common interests impact international relations and the possibility of conflicts. Looking stability in economic Params, it is revealed that in happening of globalization, a nation may emerge either in the position of resilience in the global marketplace or to the vulnerable situation to market shocks. Another decisive element studied in the paper is societal cohesion, where globalization dictates how it causes the mix of cultures and confronts traditional norms. Environmental sustainability is another aspect to be considered together with the linkages among economies which fuels the sense of environmental responsibility with the common denominator. Finally, the paper covers the effect of globalization on the control of information, emphasized on how the flow of information in the world affects the security in the nation state. At heart, this complete study aims to untangle the complex web of relations between globalization and numerous aspects of national security, giving readers a glimpse of the metamorphosis of statehood as an outcome of our world becoming interconnected more so.

The Dimensions of Globalization

Scholars, although most of them have widely considered the economic aspect of globalization, overlooked the broader scope including global culture, technology and governance [3]. This
