Beyond Reception Patrick Baker,Johannes Helmrath,Craig Kallendorf,2019-04-01 Beyond Reception applies a new concept for analyzing cultural change known as transformation the study of Renaissance humanism Traditional scholarship takes the Renaissance humanists at their word that they were simply viewing the ancient world as it actually was and recreating its key features within their own culture Initially modern studies in the classical tradition accepted this claim and saw this process as largely passive Transformation theory emphasizes the active role played by the receiving culture both in constructing a vision of the past and in transforming that vision into something that was a meaningful part of the later culture A chapter than explains the terminology and workings of transformation theory is followed by essays by nine established experts that suggest how the key disciplines of grammar rhetoric history poetry and philosophy in the Renaissance represent transformations of what went on in these fields in ancient Greece and Rome The picture that emerges suggests that Renaissance humanism as it was actually practiced both received and transformed the classical past at the same time as it constructed a vision of that past that still resonates today

Byzantium, Its Neighbours and Its Cultures Danijel Dzino,Ken Parry,2014-01-01 Byzantium was one of the longest lasting empires in history Throughout the millennium of its existence the empire showed its capability to change and develop under very different historical circumstances This remarkable resilience would have been impossible to achieve without the formation of a lasting imperial culture and a strong imperial ideological infrastructure Imperial culture and ideology required among other things to sort out who was insider and who was outsider and develop ways to define and describe ones neighbours and interact with them There is an indefinite number of possibilities for the exploration of relationships between Byzantium and its neighbours The essays in this collection focus on several interconnected clusters of topics and shared research interests such as the place of neighbours in the context of the empire and imperial ideology the transfer of knowledge with neighbours the Byzantine perception of their neighbours and the political relationship and or the conflict with neighbours
