Globalizing Integrated Pest Management George W. Norton, E. A. Heinrichs, Gregory C. Luther, Michael E. Irwin, 2008-02-28 As food demand has grown worldwide agricultural production has intensified with a concomitant expansion in pesticide use Concerns over pesticide induced health and environmental problems increased pest resistance to pesticides and continued losses due to pests have stimulated the search for alternative pest management solutions As a result integrated pest management IPM approaches have been developed and applied that rely on genetic cultural biological and information intensive pest management alternatives This book presents and critiques the participatory approaches that can be used to globalize IPM It describes the development deployment and evaluation of participatory IPM All the chapters include perspectives from both the US and developing country scientists who are on the front lines of IPM generation and diffusion The book is unique amongst IPM books in that it stresses policy analysis social and economic impact assessment multidisciplinary field research and technology transfer mechanisms

Guideline to promote integrated pest management through Farmer Field Schools in smallholder agriculture in Ethiopia Mulatu, B. ,2024-12-09 Plant protection in Ethiopia formally begin in the 1940s with focus on promoting use of pesticides To this date the pest control measure with wider acceptance has been the use of second generation synthetic organic pesticides The most used are the highly hazardous pesticides which have the reputation of posing serious risk to health and the environment In Ethiopia the total area under crops production is well over 13million hectares On the other hand the quantities of pesticides available every year have not been enough even to protect crops grown in 1million hectares Despite this there has been rampant misuse of pesticides affecting health and the environment Moreover the attainable yield remained low with substantial yield losses incurred every year due to pest damage This indicates clearly that the increase in yield gain remained low Thus promoting IPM through FFS was thought to be the means for growing healthy crops with high yield sustainably manage economic pests reduce pesticide use and protect health and the environment It was based on this that FAO promoted IPM through the FFS approach and achieved the following outputs enhanced human and institutional capacity for promoting IPM in smallholder fields established and capacitated IPM FFS groups who successfully reduced economic damage by pests generated scalable outputs conducted experience sharing events on the outputs and reached more smallholder farmers Therefore using the scaled out outputs as empirical data this guideline to promote IPM through FFS in the smallholders farmers was developed to create wider awareness and further implementation

The Economics of Agricultural Development George W. Norton, Jeffrey Alwang, William A. Masters, 2014-06-03 Persistent problems with poverty rapid population growth and malnutrition in many developing countries are among the most serious issues facing the world today This book examines the causes severity and effects of these problems as well as potential solutions The authors consider the implications of globalization of goods services and capital for agriculture poverty and the environment and identify linkages in the world food system stressing how agricultural and economic situations in poor countries affect industrialized nations and vice versa Focusing on the role that agriculture can play in improving economic and nutritional wellbeing and how that role might be enhanced this book is essential reading Integrated Pest Management David Pimentel,Rajinder Peshin,2014-04-10 The book deals with the present state and problems of integrated pest management as relating to stakeholder acceptance of IPM and how integrated pest management can become a sustainable practice The discussions include using less pesticides and the possibility of eliminating pesticides from agricultural practice Economics of Agricultural Development George W. Norton,Jeffrey Alwang,William A. Masters,2014-09-25 Economics of Agricultural Development examines the causes severity and effects of poverty population growth and malnutrition in developing countries It discusses potential solutions to these problems progress made in many countries in recent years and the implications of globalization for agriculture poverty and the environment Topics covered in the book include Means for utilizing agricultural surpluses to further overall economic development The sustainability of the natural resource environment Gender issues in relation to agriculture and resource use The contribution of agricultural technologies The importance of agricultural and macroeconomic policies as related to development and trade and the successes and failures of such policies Actions to encourage more rapid agricultural and economic development The globalization of trade in goods services and capital has been fundamental to changes being experienced in the agricultural and rural sectors of developing countries It has major implications for the fight against poverty and food insecurity and for environmental sustainability Recently agriculture has returned to a position of center stage in the development dialog as food price volatility has increased along with water scarcity and concerns grow over the effects of climate change on food supply and food security This new edition of the essential textbook in the field builds on the 2010 edition and reflects the following developments Growth in foreign demand for land and other natural resources Significant progress in agricultural and economic development in some low income countries while others are being left behind Continued growth in demand for higher valued farm products This book is essential reading for undergraduate students seeking to understand the economics of agricultural development and the world food system including environmental and human consequences international trade and capital flows Integrated Pest Management Rajinder Peshin,Ashok K. Dhawan,2009-03-10 Integrated Pest Management Dissemination and Impact Volume 2 is a sequel to Integrated Pest Management Innovation DevelopmentProcess Volume 1 The book focuses on the IPM systems in the developed countries of North America Europe and Australia and the developing countries of Asia Latin America and Africa One of the major impedimentsin the dissemination and adoption of the IPM innovation is the complexity of the technology and reaching the vast population of farmers especially in the developing countries The IPM innovation development process is incomplete without the diffusion and adoption of IPM methods by the end users and through its consequences In spite of all the efforts in the developed and developing countries the adoption of IPM is still low with few exceptions The book covers the underlying concepts and methodologies of the diffusion of innovation theory and the program evaluation and reviews the progress and impact of IPM programs implemented in the industrialized the green revolution and the subsistence agricultural systems of the world Forty four experts from entomology plant pathology environmental science agronomy anthropology economics and extension education from Africa Asia Australia Europe North America and South America have discussed impact of IPM with an interdisciplinary perspective Each one of the experts is an authority in his or her field of expertise The researchers farmers education supporting policies of the governments and market forces are the elements of the IPM innovation system to achieve wider adoption of IPM strategy in agriculture

Areawide Pest Management Opende Koul, Gerrit W. Cuperus, Norman Elliott, 2008 This book aims 1 to lay out the historical underpinnings of the areawide pest including weeds plant and stored grain insect pests management AWPM and to highlight current activity in the field 2 to delve into concepts that have direct impact on the successful implementation of AWPM which include i biological and ecological concepts important for understanding the dynamics of populations in spatially heterogeneous environments ii the critical role of inter agency and multidisciplinary interactions in the development and implementation of AWPM programmes which are often complex inter agency and intergovernmental endeavours iii the roles of modelling meteorology and databases in AWPM programmes which by their nature are information intensive and iv the importance of economic and sociological evaluation in successful AWPM implementation and 3 to compile recent case examples of pest management programmes that have used the AWPM approach A survey is presented on a wide variety of programmes developed for protecting agricultural and natural resource systems and which use a wide range of pest management tactics

Integrated Pest Management of Tropical Vegetable Crops Rangaswamy Muniappan, E. A. Heinrichs, 2016-11-23 It is an edited book with chapters written by multi disciplinary specialists in their specific subject areas It covers development of IPM components and packaging them for individual vegetable crops specifically targeted to tropical countries Scientific background for IPM components or tactics will be included There will be case studies of IPM packages developed and implemented in different countries The concept of IPM has been in existence for the past six decades however a practical holistic program has not been developed and implemented for vegetable crops in the developing countries Currently the IPM adoption rate in the tropics is minimal and there is a need for implementation of IPM technologies that are environmentally safe economical and socially acceptable We believe that adoption and implementation of IPM provided in this book will lead to significant reduction in crop losses and mitigate adverse impacts of pesticide use in the tropics This book is an outcome 20 years of research development and implementation of the IPM CRSP a project supported by USAID and administered by Virginia Tech in several developing countries along the tropical belt in Africa Asia Latin America and the Caribbean

Integrated Pest Management Edward B. Radcliffe, William D. Hutchison, Rafael E. Cancelado, 2009 This textbook presents theory and concepts in integrated pest management complemented by two award winning websites covering more
