Abstract

The purpose of this study attempts to borrow the accepted justification of current extant economic, social and human development indicators to give a positive support for the importance of leisure sport activities diversity (LSD). Four common indicators for economic, social and human development are used: gross domestic product per capita, happiness, human development index, and freedom. LSD is defined as the sport resources diversity referring to the provision and accessibility of various sport types in a society for enhancement of life satisfaction. Data for LSD were extracted from the international social survey programme. LSD was measured by a range of sports frequently participated in terms of one person mentioned index, five person mentioned index, 0.1%-index and Cov- (coefficient of variation) index. Spearman correlation analyses between economic, social and human development indicators and indexes of LSD showed that at least one or all indexes of LSD were highly correlated with economic, social and human development indicators, indicating that LSD may engage more sport participation and improve life quality.

present and future This has occurred as the barriers between so called high and popular culture continue to disintegrate Sport is now a key component within strategies for the cultural regeneration of cities and regions a tendency with mixed outcomes at times fostering genuinely democratic arrangements at others pseudo democratic arrangements whereby political business and cultural elites manipulate a sense of sameness and unity among their fellow citizens to smooth the path for the pursuit of what are actually vested interests Almost any active enactment of a sports city of culture risks divisiveness Recognizing controversies with both potentially positive and negative outcomes this book examines sport within contexts of urban and regional regeneration via a number of rather different case studies Within these studies the role of sport stadium development franchise expansion and sports fan and anti sport activism is addressed and articulated with issues concerning inter alia public funding environmental impact urban infrastructure and citizen identity The sport in the city project commenced as a research symposium held at the University of Otago Dunedin New Zealand and number of the essays originate from this occasion This book was previously published as a special issue of Sport in Society
