Price Caps and Incentive Regulation in Telecommunications Michael A. Einhorn, 2012-12-06 Michael A Einhorn In continuing to deregulate telecommunications companies regulators have begun to consider alternative approaches to traditional cost based price regulation as a means of encouraging monopoly efficiency promulgating technological innovation protecting consumers and reducing administrative costs Under cost based regulatory procedures that had been used prices were designed to recover the regulated company s costs plus an allowed rate of return on its rate base this strategy was costly to administer provided no consistent incentives to cost efficiency and technological improvement afforded many opportunities for strategic misrepresentation of reported costs and may have encouraged both uneconomic expansion of the utility s rate base and cross subsidization of its competitive services A category of alternative regulatory approaches can be classified broadly as social contracts Under the general strategy of social contract regulation regulators first delimit a group of regulated core services that they continue to regulate and then stipulate a list of constraints that the utility must agree to meet in the future in exchange regulators agree to detariff or deregulate entirely other competitive or nonessential services that the utility may offer As long as no stipulated constraints are violated the utility may price freely any service if it reduces costs it may keep a share of its profits According to the National Telecommunications Information Administration NTIA 1987 social contract agreements of one form or another have been considered or implemented in a majority of American states

The Privatisation of European Telecommunications

Johan From, Kjell A. Eliassen, 2017-11-28 This international volume presents a comprehensive comparative study of the transformation of the European telecommunications industry from 1990 to the present The book focuses on the old incumbent operators and their dramatic change from state agencies to listed companies It analyzes the liberalization process as well as the corporatization and privatization of these companies The contributors assess the conditions for the transformations taking place the driving forces for change the effects to management the efforts of the EU during these processes and ultimately the role of the private owner Political science publications have all but excluded analysis of the newly privatized companies their contribution to the liberalization process both before and after privatization and the interplay between the national political and company levels The book redresses this shortcoming and also features a double empirical focus in that the main national incumbents in Europe are analyzed and compared to Telenor the Norwegian former incumbent

The Economics of Telecommunications Systems Noel D. Uri, 2004 The process of formulating and implementing telecommunications policy in the United States often seems chaotic and disorganised with overlapping responsibility and frequent conflicts among federal and state regulators Congress the Administration and the Federal judiciary There has never been a consensus on what should change and what should remain unaltered Telecommunications policy has evolved gradually over a relatively long period of time resulting in a cumulative major transformation It is still tied however to the Communications Act of 1934 Actions have been taken that have gradually moved policy from traditional public utility regulation of a monopoly to greater reliance on market forces and encouragement of competition The policies are an amalgam incorporating elements from a wide range of political and economic views There is nothing endemic in this transformation process to guarantee that the resulting policies have led to greater economic efficiency or that they are better in some subjective sense than alternatives that are available policies that have been implemented in order to evaluate their impact An objective evaluation of the impact of a policy affords an opportunity to make adjustments to it based on the realised economic consequences This approach to policy making can be looked upon as a learning by doing exercise In this book a number of objective studies based on data from various telecommunications systems are presented These studies discuss and evaluate policies that have been implemented In a number of instances the policies have been misguided Recommendations to correct the most egregious problems are offered
