Food Security, Agricultural Policies and Economic Growth Niek Koning, 2017-04-21 Using a political economic approach supplemented with insights from human ecology this volume analyzes the long term dynamics of food security and economic growth The book begins by discussing the nature of preindustrial food crises and the changes that have occurred since the 19th century with the ascent of technical science and the fossil fuel revolution It explains how these changes improved living standards but that the realization of this improvement was usually dependent on government support for smallholder modernization The author sets out how the evolution of food security in different regions has been influenced by farm policy choices and how these choices were shaped by local societal characteristics international relations and changing configurations in metropolitan countries Separate chapters are devoted to the interaction of this evolution with debates on food security and economic growth and with international economic policies The final chapters highlight the new challenges for global food security that will arise as traditional sources of biomass production and the more easily extractable reserves of fossil biomass become depleted or can no longer be used Overall the book emphasizes the inadequacy of current explanations with regard to these challenges It explores what is needed to ensure a sustainable future and calls for a rethinking of these issues a necessary reflection in today's unstable global political situation Foreign Agricultural

Watson II, 2011-09-15 Despite technological advances in agriculture nearly a billion people around the world still suffer from hunger and poor nutrition while a billion are overweight or obese This imbalance highlights the need not only to focus on food production but also to implement successful food policies In this new textbook intended to be used with the three volumes of Case Studies in Food Policy for Developing Countries also from Cornell the 2001 World Food Prize laureate Per Pinstrup Andersen and his colleague Derrill D Watson II analyze international food policies and discuss how such policies can and must address the many complex challenges that lie ahead in view of continued poverty globalization climate change food price volatility natural resource degradation demographic and dietary transitions and increasing interests in local and organic food production Food Policy for Developing Countries offers a social entrepreneurship approach to food policy analysis Calling on a wide variety of disciplines including economics nutrition sociology anthropology environmental science medicine and geography the authors show how all elements in the food system function together
