Agudo, 2021-09-10 Geological Heritage has very diverse elements both for its intrinsic nature and for its social and scientific significance. These elements have a scientific dimension: stratigraphic, geomorphological, lithological, paleontological, etc., and a landscape dimension both with implications for territorial management. In territorial management and planning, it is essential to carry out inventory and cataloging of places of natural and social interest to establish a comprehensive policy. The identification and valuation of the geological and biological heritage and their interaction in the landscape should favor the conservation and preservation of this natural and historical heritage. Sustainable development implies rational use that prevents the degradation or loss of these unique environments of the natural environment, as well as a dissemination and awareness of landscape resources for a better understanding and enjoyment, integrating activities of both environmental education and nature tourism.

Evans, 2022-01-28 This volume samples the history of art about fossils and the visual conceptualization of their significance, starting with biblical and mythological depictions, extending to renditions of ancient life in long vanished habitats, and on to a modern understanding that paleoart conveys lessons for the betterment of the human condition. Twenty-nine chapters illustrate how art about fossils has come to be a significant teaching tool, not only about evolution of past life but also about conservation of our planet for the benefit of future generations.
