American Arabists in the Cold War Middle East, 1946-75 Teresa Fava Thomas, 2016-07-06 This book examines the careers of 53 area experts in the US State Department's Middle East bureau during the Cold War. Known as Arabists or Middle East hands, they were very different in background, education, and policy outlook from their predecessors, the Orientalists. A highly competitive selection process and rigorous training shaped them into a small corps of diplomatic professionals with top-notch linguistic and political reporting skills. Case studies shed light on Washington's perceptions of Israel and the Arab world as well as how American leaders came to regard and often disregard the advice of their own expert advisors. This study focuses on their transformative role in Middle East diplomacy from the Eisenhower through the Ford administrations.

It contains hints on how to master nuances in dialectal pronunciation as well as the differences of meaning in their various forms. Based on the dialect of Damascus, the language covered here is part of what has variously been called Syrian Arabic, Eastern Arabic, and Levantine Arabic, encompassing the dialects of Beirut, Amman, and Jerusalem as well as Damascus, with references made to regional variants. In a world drawn ever closer to events in the Middle East, this comprehensive grammar reference is yet another extraordinary addition to the growing library of Arabic language learning materials published by Georgetown University Press.
