

French and Raven's Five Forms of Power

In 1959, French and Raven, researchers at the University of Michigan, identified five bases or sources of social power as follow:

- Coercive Power: Have the ability to punish for non-compliance.
- Reward Power: Have the ability to compensate for compliance.
- Legitimate Power: Hold the formal right to make demands.
- Referent Power: Perceived attractiveness, worthiness, right to respect.
- Expert Power: Based on superior skill and knowledge.

Six years later, Raven added an extra power base:
Informational Power: Ability to control the information that others need to accomplish something.

Forms Of Power:

Forms of Power Gianfranco Poggi, 2016-04-07 Political power is often viewed as the sole embodiment of social power even while we recognize that social power manifests itself in different forms and institutional spheres This new book by Gianfranco Poggi suggests that the three principal forms of social power the economic the normative ideological and the political are based on a group's privileged access to and control over different resources Against this general background Poggi shows how various embodiments of normative ideological and economic power have both made claims on political power considered chiefly as it is embodied in the state and responded in turn to the latter's attempt to control or to instrumentalize them The embodiment of ideological power in religion and in modern intellectual elites is examined in the context of their relations to the state Poggi also explores both the demands laid upon the state by the business elite and the impact of the state's fiscal policies on the economic sphere The final chapter considers the relationship between a state's political class and its military elite which tends to use the resource of organized coercion for its own ends Forms of Power will be of interest to students and scholars of sociology and politics explanations of the key features of the social structure culture and religion He argues against the widely held view that the Indian caste system is best understood as a unique cultural development demonstrating that many of the seemingly exotic features are variations on themes common to other societies Milner's analysis is rooted in a new theoretical framework called resource structuralism that helps to clarify the nature and significance of power and symbolic capital The book thus provides a bold new analysis of India an innovative approach to the analysis of religion and an important contribution to social theory

Gypsy and Traveller Ethnicity Brian A Belton, 2004-08-02 The book explores the notion of Gypsy and Traveller ethnicity and provides a critique of the conceptual basis of racial and ethnic categorisation An analysis of the post war housing situation is given in order to illustrate a connection between social and economic conditions legislation affecting gypsies and travellers and the visibility and general consciousness of the gypsy and traveller population The originality of the book lies in its argument that the position of gypsies and travellers largely arises out of social conditions and interaction rather than political biological or ideological determinants It puts forward the notion of an ethnic narrative of traveller identity and illustrates how variations of this have been defensively deployed by some travellers and elaborated on by theorists Belton focuses on the social generation of travellers as a cultural ethnic and racial categorization offering a rational explanation of the development of an itinerant population that is less ambiguous and more informative in terms of the social nature of the gypsy and traveller position than interpretations based on blood breed stock ethnicity or race that dominate the literature

Theorising and Representing Maternal Realities

Julie Kelso, Marie Porter, 2009-05-05. Maternal research is a rapidly expanding multi disciplinary form of scholarship. Prior to second wave feminism most motherhood literature was written from a male perspective. This literature focused on telling mothers how to practice mothering without acknowledging the expertise of the mothers themselves. Research on motherhood as it is experienced in all its facets by mothers has only emerged in recent decades. This book is aimed at expanding academic knowledge of motherhood from a feminist perspective looking particularly at how maternal subjectivities can be represented and theorised. When mothers themselves academic or not are responsible for theorisation and representation of maternal realities dominant theories and representations of motherhood are radically challenged. In Theorising and Representing Maternal Realities the contributors argue that it is no longer acceptable to regard mothers as mere objects of knowledge and research. They are primarily the subjects of knowledge and research.
