Fortunes Voyage:

Fortunes à faire Catherine Manning, 2017-07-05 The history of the French in India has received far less scholarly attention than that of other European nations English historiography in particular has often treated it as no more than a preliminary to the extension of British power In addition work hitherto has tended to focus on the trade with Europe not the Asian trade the country trade carried on within Asia the full importance of this trade for the Dutch and British is now being recognised This book represents the first sustained study of French activities in Asian trade and fills this gap in the historiography Catherine Manning is concerned to relate the French traders to their social regional and financial roots and to trace their connections with other commercial groups in India both European and Asian The French evidence that she assembles including much archival material also makes a significant contribution to the debate about economic decline and renewal in 18th century India Her analysis stresses the importance of the Indian context and shows that economic and political developments in South India were crucial to the French move from trade to war in the 1740s Finally the book examines why the French failed in an enterprise which was to succeed so signally for the British only a few decades later

A General History and Collection of Voyages and Travels Robert Kerr, 1814 Natures in Translation Alan Bewell, 2017-01-02 Understanding the dynamics of British colonialism and the enormous ecological transformations that took place through the mobilization and globalized management of natures For many critics Romanticism is synonymous with nature writing for representations of the natural world appear during this period with a freshness concreteness depth and intensity that have rarely been equaled Why did nature matter so much to writers of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries And how did it play such an important role in their understanding of themselves and the world In Natures in Translation Alan Bewell argues that there is no Nature in the singular only natures that have undergone transformation through time and across space He examines how writers as disparate as Erasmus and Charles Darwin Joseph Banks Gilbert White William Bartram William Wordsworth John Clare and Mary Shelley understood a world in which natures were traveling and resettling the globe like never before Bewell presents British natural history as a translational activity aimed at globalizing local natures by making them mobile exchangeable comparable and representable Bewell explores how colonial writers in the period leading up to the formulation of evolutionary theory responded to a world in which new natures were coming into being while others disappeared For some of these writers colonial natural history held the promise of ushering in a cosmopolitan nature in which every species through trade and exchange might become a true citizen of the world Others struggled with the question of how to live after the natures they depended upon were gone Ultimately Natures in Translation demonstrates that far from being separate from the dominant concerns of British imperial culture nature was integrally bound up with the business of empire
