Educating For A Change

Douglas Bourn

Educating For A Change:

Change Forces Michael Fullan, 1999 Fullan's first book on this subject was an instant and best selling success. Now in Change Forces The Sequel he extends and expands the use of chaos theory as a lens through which to view and comprehend change and the forces which govern it. Educators have already widely embraced this approach and taken on board the idea that change is not so straightforward as we might hope. As Fullan worked on his ideas relating them to school systems, higher education and research, the field of change forces was also developing significantly. This volume covers new aspects of this science of complexity and helps educators obtain insights for delving deeper into moral purpose and expanding into fresh dimensions of changing forces in the environment. The first volume appealed to a wide market from classroom teachers through school administrators to student teachers and academics. This volume will appeal to a similar cross section.

Educating for Radical Social Transformation in the Climate Crisis Stuart Tannock, 2021-09-21 This book asks how education can be developed to facilitate the radical social, cultural and economic transformations needed to deal with the ongoing climate emergency. The author illuminates important links between the work currently being done in climate change and education and the broader and older theories of radical education, an area of education theory and practice that has long grappled with the question of how to use education to create a more just society. Highlighting both current work and long traditions that include popular, progressive, feminist, anti-racist and anti-colonial education, the author draws on interdisciplinary research to make the case for how radical education can help tackle the climate change crisis. It will have direct relevance for scholars of environmental education and radical education as well as activists and practitioners.

The Change Agent's Guide to Innovation in Education Ronald G. Havelock, 1973 Can Education Change Society? Michael W. Apple, 2013 Despite the vast differences between the Right and the Left over the role of education in the production of inequality, one common element both sides share is a sense that education can and should do something about society to either restore what is being lost or radically alter what is there now. The question was perhaps put most succinctly by the radical educator George Counts in 1932 when he asked: Dare the School Build a New Social Order, challenging entire generations of educators to participate in, actually to lead the reconstruction of society. Over 70 years later, celebrated educator, author and activist Michael Apple revisits Counts' now iconic work, compares them to the equally powerful voices of minoritized people and again asks the seemingly simple question of whether education truly has the power to change society. In this groundbreaking work, Apple pushes educators toward a more substantial understanding of what schools do and what we can do to challenge the relations of dominance and subordination in the larger society. This touchstone volume is both provocative and honest about the ideological and economic conditions that groups in society are facing and is certain to become another classic in the canon of Apple's work and the literature on education more generally.

The Change Laboratory for Teacher Training in Entrepreneurship Education Daniele Morselli, 2018-11-16 This open access book illustrates a new type of formative intervention for in service teacher training in entrepreneurship education The book describes a Change Laboratory and shows how teachers and workshop assistants develop the idea of a multidisciplinary project entailing the design of a self service and parking lot in a dismissed area close to the city centre The multidisciplinary project is taken as example of how an idea is debated and turned into collective action and change the very essence of initiative and entrepreneurship The Change Laboratory thus increases the participation of students teachers and stakeholders in the school towards a new curriculum through the implementation of a multidisciplinary project connecting school with the world outside and working life The book features a foreword by Luke Pittaway USASBE Entrepreneurship Educator of 2018 The manuscript discusses key concepts of Cultural Historical Activity Theory s Change Laboratory as a formative intervention in a coherent and accessible manner Beyond that it carefully illustrates how the Change Laboratory and its principles of double stimulation and ascending from the abstract to the concrete can be used as a theory of change to address one of the difficult and new demands of the European Union s New Skills Agenda The author takes the reader through the expansive learning journey and uses strong evidence to show how a new object can be developed and how associated tensions and contradictions can be surfaced and tackled by actors with a partially shared object and how a new concept can be formed and enriched through implementation and reflection in a manner that generates collective transformative agency Reviewer This project has received funding from the European Union s Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme under the Marie Skłodowska Curie Grant Agreement No 654101

Education for Social Change Douglas Bourn, 2021-12-16 This book introduces students to education as a vehicle for social change Douglas Bourn begins by providing historical context of how education has been linked to social change around the world and moves on in the second section of the book to discuss potential theoretical and conceptual frameworks for thinking about education for social change The third sections covers how social change has been explored and promoted within different areas of learning including schooling youth work and higher education The fourth section looks at the opportunities and challenges for promoting education for social change and reviews current international initiatives including those of global citizenship and climate change Key theorists are introduced throughout the book including bell hooks Dewey Giroux Gramsci and Freire Each chapter begins with an opening question and ends with bulleted concluding points questions for discussion and a further reading list The book includes a foreword written by Tania Ramalho State University of New York USA
