Educational Citizenship And Independent Learning:

Educational Citizenship and Independent Learning Rhys Griffith, 1998 Defining the characteristics of the ideal global citizen critically reflective ethically concerned with social justice and capable of exercising personal control Rhys Griffith examines how citizenship is promoted ignored or even suppressed in schools His study is based on five years research in 97 educational establishments He offers an analysis of existing methods of cultivating citizenship and describes independent learning projects designed to develop the attributes of global citizenship From this research Dr Griffith concludes that the current emphasis of the curriculum is on the perception of the child as a passive vessel for accumulating knowledge This encourages conformity rather than the enquiring and active mental state which Griffith considers essential to the global citizen of the next century He proposes in detail how the present system can be adapted to promote greater participation among pupils and through this increased independence and flexibility Educational Citizenship and Independent Learning Rhys David Griffith, 1996

Education, Conflict and Development Julia Paulson, 2011-05-16 Under various names education and conflict education and fragility education and insecurity etc the understanding of linkages between education and violent conflict has emerged as an important and pressing area of inquiry Work and research by practitioners and scholars has clearly pointed to the negative potential of education to contribute to and entrench violent conflict This work has highlighted the struggle for education during and following periods of instability and demonstrated the degree to which communities affected by conflict prioritize educational opportunities It has also offered powerful normative arguments for the importance of quality education for peacebuilding reconciliation postconflict reconstruction and development In many instances however these important insights are derived less from rigorous research and scholarship in the social sciences than from the delivery and evaluation of educational programming in situations affected by conflict This volume therefore seeks to broaden enquiry into education and conflict by exploring through conceptual and empirical work its linkages to broader theories and practices of development and peacebuilding The volume begins with a conceptual and theoretical section followed by a series of international case studies before closing with three chapters focused on the case of Northern Uganda Contributors present a diverse set of studies that together deepen understandings of the ways the education functions in various situations affected by conflict and the ways in which it might best be mobilized to contribute towards peacebuilding and development

Primožič, 2015-05-27 Democratic institutions and laws are essential but they cannot bring about democracy on their own. They will only function if they build on a culture of democracy and our societies will not be able to develop and sustain such a culture unless education plays an essential role. Student engagement is crucial; democracy cannot be taught unless it is practised within institutions among students and in relations between higher education and society in general. This 20th volume of the Council of Europe Higher Education Series demonstrates the importance of student engagement for the development and maintenance of the democratic culture that enables democratic institutions and laws to function in practice. This volume covers three aspects of student engagement that are seldom explored: its role in society through political participation and civic involvement; its place in higher education policy processes and policy making structures; and how student unions represent the most institutionalised form of student engagement. The authors are accomplished scholars, policy makers, students, and student leaders.

Moral and Political Dimensions of Critical-Democratic Citizenship Education
Wiel Veugelers, 2023-07-31 Winner of the 2024 Moral Development and Education SIG 67 Outstanding Book Award. In Moral and Political Dimensions of Critical Democratic Citizenship Education, Wiel Veugelers analyses theory, policy, and practice of moral education and citizenship education in the past few decades. He shows that there are different orientations in national and global moral education and citizenship education. He criticises the strong orientation on the individual and on adaptation and argues for more emphasis on social justice, equity, and democracy. This volume brings together articles Veugelers published in the past 25 years. Each article is introduced by a reflection on the reasons for the article, its responses, and lessons that are still relevant. The book ends with a large chapter that overviews central developments and presents a programme for future theory, research, policy, and practice in moral education and citizenship education with a strong focus on democracy and empowerment: the moral should become more political and the political more moral.
