Emerging Trends in Library Organization Sul H. Lee, 1978 Emerging Trends in Library Organization Sul H. Lee, 1978 Emerging Human Resource Trends in Academic Libraries, Michael A. Crumpton, Nora J. Bird, 2020-12-04

Emerging Human Resource Trends in Academic Libraries presents the collective wisdom of human resource librarians and administrators who have been in the forefront of practicing and applying the human resource principles in academic libraries. The book is divided into five Parts. Part I focuses on the present academic library environment and the unique human resource challenges that can be found there. Part II looks at the role of LIS education in preparing Masters level librarians to work within academic libraries and beyond. Part III examines how human resource departments in organizations can continue education beyond the degree for professionals and other staff. Part IV is concerned with how academic libraries show their value to the parent institution. Part V focuses on the library staff roles how they have changed and how they are valued in relation to faculty and professional positions. These chapters within each Part represent the emerging trends within academic libraries that impact how librarians are educated, mentored, and given the ability to obtain professional development training as incumbent librarians as changes occur in the field. Each chapter is written by a practitioner in HR who has experienced related problems and sought solutions.

Explore the ARL's initiatives for identifying, formulating, and testing new criteria for evaluating academic libraries in the digital age. The proliferation of electronic information resources in the past decade has changed the ways in which research libraries evaluate their service and holdings. This collection of articles, thirteen of which previously appeared in ARL's bimonthly newsletter, reports on research issues and actions, examines new measures for library evaluation that are being developed by the Association of Research Libraries. It presents an overview of how the Association of Research Libraries' new measures initiative developed, plus insightful reports on the details of the SERVQUAL LibQUAL and E metrics projects Handy flow charts and tables make the information easily accessible and understandable From the editor The profound changes in library management and collection development brought about by digital technology in the closing decade of the twentieth century have changed the way we think about libraries If we were to ask librarians who have been in the profession for more than a decade how they evaluated a library we probably would hear statistics about the number of volumes held and added annually the number of serial subscriptions how much money a library has to spend and how many professionals are on staff These are the traditional criteria by which libraries have been judged throughout much of the twentieth century Newer librarians however especially those who entered the profession in the late 1980s and 1990s use a different yardstick and frequently recite different statistics that include terms such as user satisfaction spending on electronic resources and services document delivery services numbers of databases and electronic journals available and services provided to distance learners In Evaluating the Twenty First Century Library you ll find valuable information on current performance measures for academic libraries the continuing search for accurate new performance measures the uses of learning outcomes assessment SERVQUAL LibQUAL and the ARL LibQUAL Pilot Project the results of the 2000 Symposium on Measuring Library Service Quality the uses of E metrics in assessing the academic networked environment and accurately measuring use users services resources and other factors an insightful discussion of the rise in spending on electronic information by research libraries
