Empowerment and Women's Health Jane Stein, 1997-04 A comprehensive analysis of the links between women's empowerment and health this work looks at what determines success in the fight for better conditions the redistribution of power and control of resources Linking international development policies with women's situations the theories of women's health with the lives of individuals the author reveals the complex connections associations and interactions in the web of factors relevant to health This study should be of value to anyone interested in health care issues and states the case for an international feminist agenda attentive to local cultural idioms Empowerment Kenneth McLaughlin, 2016-01-08

Empowerment is a term in widespread use today and one that is often considered to be a self-evident good Here McLaughlin explores its emergence in the 1960s through to its rise in the 1990s and ubiquity in present-day discourse and interrogates its social status paying particular attention to social policy social work and health and social care discourse He argues that a focus on empowerment has superseded the notion of political subjects exercising power autonomously This innovative volume Discusses the relationship between concepts of empowerment and power as they have been understood historically Analyses changes in the conception and meaning of empowerment in relation to the shifting social and political landscape Acknowledges the positive impact empowerment strategies have had on those who have campaigned to be empowered and also on those who have seen their role as being to help empower others Highlights ways in which talk about empowerment can actually work in such a way as to further disempower those already marginalised Critically examining how empowerment has become embedded in contemporary social and political life this work offers a discussion of the term's multiple meanings what it actually entails and how it constructs and positions those being empowered and those empowering Complex

Systems Theory and Development Practice Samir Rihani, 2002 Ranging over a wide terrain of social political and economic thinking and specific country experiences the author explains the key concepts in complex systems theory and their possible applications in development practice He examines various development issues and institutions in the light of what he sees as the limitations of rigid linear thinking in an essentially fluid non-linear world Little wonder he concludes that the results of half a century of development effort have been so disappointing BOOK JACKET Empowerment and Women's Health

American Rehabilitation, 2004 Rethinking Agency Sumi Madhok, 2014-03-21 This book proposes a new theoretical framework for agency thinking by examining the ethical, discursive and practical engagements of a group of women development workers in north-west India with developmentalism and individual rights. Rethinking Agency asks an underexplored question, tracks the entry, encounter, experience and practice of developmentalism and individual rights and examines their normative and political trajectory. Through an ethnography of a moral encounter with developmentalism, it raises a critical question: how do we think of agency in oppressive contexts? Further, how do issues of risk, injury, coercion and oppression alter the conceptual mechanics of agency itself? The work will be invaluable to research organisations, development practitioners, policy makers and political journalists interested in questions of gender, political empowerment, rights and political participation and to academics and students in the fields of feminist theory, development studies, sociology, politics and gender studies.
