The Genesis of Industrial Capital Pat Hudson,1986 This book analyses the sources of finance used in the Yorkshire wool textile sector during a period of rapid expansion considerable technical change and the gradual transformation from domestic and workshop production to factory industry Although there has been much recent debate about capital investment proportions and their sources nationally there is no other study of a region or section capable of testing various hypotheses current in the general literature of the British industrial revolution How was capital amassed in proto industry How important were merchants in building factories What role did landowners and the local banking sector What influence did trade credit and fluctuations in trade credit have on the expansion of productive enterprise How important was reinvestment and what determined both profitability and the extent to which it was ploughed back into business The answers to these questions have value for all students of the industrialisation process whilst the detailed material on Yorkshire is of interest for local study and provides a model of the questions which could be asked in other similar regional studies of the future

Men, Women and Property in England, 1780-1870 R. J. Morris,2005-02-03 This is an innovative study of middle class behaviour and property relations in English towns in Georgian and Victorian Britain Through the lens of wills family papers property deeds account books and letters the author offers a reading of the ways in which middle class families survived and surmounted the economic difficulties of early industrial society He argues that these were essentially networked families created and affirmed by a gift network of material goods finance services and support with property very much at the centre of middle class survival strategies His approach combines microhistorical studies of individual families with a broader analysis of the national and even international networks within which these families operated The result is a significant contribution to the history and to debates about the place of structural and cultural analysis in historical understanding

Finance and Financiers in European History 1880-1960 Youssef Cassis,2002-06-20 A highly distinguished team of contributors addresses the complex and crucial role of finance in European history during the period 1880-1960 False Necessity Roberto Mangabeira Unger, 1987-08-28 Changing Hands Peter Capuano, 2015-06-01 In Changing Hands Peter J. Capuano sifts through Victorian literature and culture for changes in the way the human body is imagined in the face of urgent questions about creation, labor, gender, class, and racial categorization using hands, the distinguishing mark of humanity, as the primary point of reference. Capuano complicates his study by situating the historical argument in the context of questions about the disappearance of hands during the twentieth century into the haze of figurative meaning. Out of this curious aporia, Capuano exposes a powerful embodied handedness as the historical basis for many of the uncritically metaphorical, metonymic, and/or ideogrammatic approaches to the study of the human body in recent critical discourse.
