Selected Papers on Photogeology and Photo Interpretation, Presented at Meetings Sponsored by the Committee on Geophysics and Geography, Research and Development Board United States. Research and Development Board. Committee on Geophysics and Geography, 1953 Selected Papers on Photogeology and Photo Interpretation United States. Research and Development Board. Committee on Geophysics and Geography, 1953 Geography from the Air F. Walker, 2024-10-02 First Published in 1953 Geography from the Air is the first book in English to explain and illustrate fully the use of air photographs in the study of geography. It sets out in simple form the limited amount of technical information which is necessary in order to enjoy fully the fascinating experience of training oneself to appreciate almost every aspect of the landscape shown on vertical air photographs. Thereafter the book consists of nearly 100 high quality air photographs selected from almost every part of Britain each of which is accompanied by a text describing in detail the features of general as well as of geographical interest which can be detected on the photographic prints. The photographs have been grouped into sections detailing with many aspects of physical and human geography such as the influence of geology on landforms, river erosion and river development, glacial action, coast forms, the relationships between relief and settlement, the appearance of varying agricultural and industrial regions and the shape and character of towns and villages etc. Apart from the explanation of this new geographical technique, the selection of photographs is such that this book should serve as a valuable source of illustrative material for the study of the geography of Britain and the systematic treatment of physical and human geography.

Geographic Interpretations of the Internet Aharon Kellerman, 2016-04-26 This book introduces the Internet through a systematic geographical interpretation, thus shedding light on the Internet as a spatial entity. The book's approach is to extend basic concepts developed for terrestrial geography to cyberspace, most notably those relating to space, structure, place, distance, mobility and presence. It further considers the Internet by its constitution of information space, communications space and screen space. By using well-known concepts from traditional human geography, this book proposes a combination of terrestrial and virtual geographies which may in turn help in coping with Internet structures and contents. The book appeals to human and economic geographers, especially those interested in information and Internet geographies. It may also be of special interest and importance to sociologists and media scholars and students dealing with communication technology and the Internet.

still accelerating as the integration of geographic technologies such as the global positioning system and geographic information systems GPS GIS is creating an explosion of new real time real world applications and research capabilities The resultant dynamic space time interactive research and management environments created by interactive GPS GIS among other technologies places geography squarely at the forefront of advanced multidisciplinary research and modeling programs and has created core organization management tools geographic management systems which will dramatically change the way governments and businesses work in the decades ahead While these and other important geographic technologies including remote sensing location based services and many others addressed in this book are forging new opportunities for geography and geographers they also pose challenges
