Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine Gary Fisher, David Robinson, 2021-09-07 Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine is an anthology of travel accounts by a diverse range of writers and academics Challenging conventional academic authority each contributor writes from memory during the Covid 19 lockdown about a place they have previously visited accompanied by an historical traveller who published an account of the same place As immobility is forced upon us at least for the immediate future we have the chance to reflect Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine presents opportunities to approach a text as a scholar differently We break with the traditional academic rules by inserting ourselves into the narrative and foregrounding the personal subjective elements of literary scholarship Each contributor critiques an historical description of a place about which simultaneously they write a personal account The travel writer Philip Marsden posits a fundamental difference between traditional academic writing and travel writing in that travel narratives do not or ought not anyway begin by assuming a scholarly authoritative understanding of the places they describe Instead they attempt to say what they found and how they felt about it The very good point we think Marsden makes and the one this book tries to demonstrate is that as a matter of form the first person narrative has the ability to expose the research process to allow the reader to see when and how a scholarly transformation takes place to give the scholar the opportunity to openly foreground their own subjectivity and say this is the personal journey that led me to my conclusions to problematize the unchallenged authority of the scholar Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine challenges the idea of scholarly authority by embracing the subjective nature of research and the first person element We address a problematic distance between travel writing practice and travel writing scholarship in which the latter talks about the former without ever really talking to it Defining travel writing as a genre has often proved more difficult than it might seem but Peter Hulme has suggested that it is ethically necessary for the writer to have visited the place described Hulme asserts that travel writing is certainly literature but it is never fiction If this seems obvious Travel Writing in an Age of Global Quarantine asks the reader to consider the idea that if visiting the place described is necessary for the writer to claim they have produced a travel account might it also be necessary or at least advantageous and valuable for the writer of a scholarly critique of that account to have done the same

A World Laid Waste? Francis

Dodsworth, Antonia Walford, 2018-03-05 Globalisation and neo liberalism have seen the rise of new international powers increasingly interlinked economies and mass urbanisation The internet mobile communications and mass migration have transformed lives around the planet For some this has been positive and liberating but it has also been destructive of settled communities and ways of living ecologies economies and livelihoods cultural values political programmes and identities This edited volume uses the concept of waste to explore and critique the destructive impact of globalisation and neo liberalism By bringing to bear the distinct perspectives of sociologists of class religion and culture anthropologists concerned with infrastructures material waste and energy and analysts from accounting and finance exploring financialization and supply chains this collection explores how creative responses to the wastelands of globalisation can establish alternative at times fragile narratives of hope Responding to the tendency in contemporary public and academic discourse to resort to a language of the laid to waste or left behind to make sense of social and cultural change the authors of this volume focus on the practices and rhetorics of waste in a range of different empirical settings to reveal the spaces for political action and social imagination that are emerging even in times of polarisation uncertainty and disillusionment This inter disciplinary approach developed through a decade of research in the ESRC Centre for Research on Socio Cultural Change CRESC provides a distinctive perspective on the ways in which people in very different social and cultural contexts are negotiating the destructive and creative possibilities of recent political and economic change

Acts of Union and Disunion Linda Colley, 2014-01-02 The United Kingdom Great Britain the British Isles the Home Nations such a wealth of different names implies uncertainty and contention and an ability to invent and adjust In a year that sees a Scottish referendum on independence Linda Colley analyses some of the forces that have unified Britain in the past She examines the mythology of Britishness and how far and why it has faded She discusses the Acts of Union with Wales Scotland and Ireland and their limitations while scrutinizing England's own fractures And she demonstrates how the UK has been shaped by movement of British people to other countries and continents and of people ideas and influences arriving from elsewhere As acts of union and disunion again become increasingly relevant to our daily lives and politics Colley considers how if at all the pieces might be put together anew and what this might mean Based on a 15 part BBC Radio 4 series

A Comparative Analysis of Violence in Margaret Drabble and Four Selected Iraqi Novels Bushra Juhi Jani, 2021-11-22 This book is the first work comparing Margaret Drabble with key Iraqi novelists It analyses physical and soft violence in Drabble's novels and the works of four Iraqi contemporary novelists including Ahmed Saadawi's Frankenstein in Baghdad 2013 The book argues that physical and soft violence are interwoven and interconnected meaning that where there is physical violence there is nearly always soft violence and though to a lesser extent vice versa Thus soft violence can cause just as much damage psychologically or literally as hard violence The Literary North K. Cockin, 2012-06-07 According to Orwell the North was a strange country In an industrial landscape its inhabitants seem to inhabit a bleak world caught in the gaze of 1930s realism Such stereotypes have been tenacious This book challenges these stereotypes establishing the strategic and mobile nature of the North and the effects of literary realism Triumph of the South Peter Scott, 2017-11-22 This book provides a scholarly but accessible account of British regional development during the twentieth century focusing on the emergence and development of the North South divide Beginning with regional imbalance in the Victorian and Edwardian economies the book goes on to discuss the effects on the First World War and its aftermath which created a discernible split between the depressed North and West and the relatively prosperous South Attention is also paid to the impact of government policy on regional development during the interwar years and beyond and factors affecting industrial location in this period

Triumph of the South Peter Scott, 2007 This book provides a scholarly but accessible account of British regional development during the twentieth century focusing on the emergence and development of the North South divide Beginning with regional imbalance in the Victorian and Edwardian economies the book goes on to discuss the effects on the First World War and its aftermath which created a discernible split between the depressed North and West and the relatively prosperous South Attention is also paid to the impact of government policy on regional development during the interwar years and beyond and factors affecting industrial location in this period Writing Place Rebecca Hutcheon, 2018-02-12 Exploring a hitherto neglected field Writing Place Mimesis Subjectivity and Imagination in the Works of George Gissing is the first monograph to consider the works of George Gissing 1857 1903 in light of the spatial turn By exploring how objectivity and subjectivity interact in his work the book asks what are the risks of looking for the real in Gissing s places How does the inherent heterogeneity of Gissing s observation influence the textual recapitulation of place In addition to examining canonical texts such as The Nether World 1889 New Grub Street 1891 and The Private Papers of Henry Ryecroft 1901 the book analyses the lesser known novels short stories journalism and personal writings of Gissing in the context of modern spatial studies The book challenges previously biographical and London centric accounts of Gissing s representation of space and place by re examining seemingly innate contemporaneous geographical demarcations such as the north and the south the city suburb and country Europe and the world and re reading Gissing s places in the contexts of industrialism ruralism the city in literature and travel writing Through sustained attention to the ambiguities and contradictions rooted in the form and content of his writing the book concludes that ultimately Gissing s novels undermine spatial dichotomies by emphasising and celebrating the incongruity of seeming certainties Social Class in the 21st Century Mike Savage, 2015-11-05 A fresh take on social class from the experts behind the BBC s Great British Class Survey Why does social class matter more than ever in Britain today How has the meaning of class changed What does this mean for social mobility and inequality In this book Mike Savage and the team of sociologists responsible for the Great British Class Survey look beyond the labels to explore how and why our society is changing and what this means for the people who find themselves in the margins as well as in the centre Their new conceptualization of class is based on the distribution of three kinds of capital economic inequalities in income and wealth social the different kinds of people we know and cultural the ways in which our leisure and cultural preferences are exclusive and provides incontrovertible evidence that class is as powerful and relevant today as it s ever been
