Geography And Worldview A Christian Reconnaissance:

Geography and Worldview Henk Aay, Sander Griffioen, 1998-03-26 Co published with the Calvin Center for Christian Scholarship CLC Geography and Worldview contains eight essays on the theme of geography and Christian worldview based on papers presented at a conference held at Calvin College in August 1996 The essays included are grouped to show the distinction between two approaches to Christian Scholarship The first approach looks at the discipline of geography itself and explores the work of geographers to determine their implicit beliefs about the world For example an essay by David Livingstone lays bare the persistent relevance of assumptions once derived from natural theology and essays by David Ley Iain Wallace and Janel Curry Roper analyze the breakdown of positivism and postmodernism in the current worldview in geography The second approach begins outside geography and asks what consequences geographers basic beliefs or fundamental notions have for geographic scholarship Here Gerda Hoekveld Meijer explores the significance of externality fields and borders for geography Gerard Hoekveld looks at the implications of a biblical understanding of citizenship on geography and Henk Aay presents the impact of neo Calvinism on geographic education in the Netherlands Includes two maps

Porter, 2009-04-15 This book an edited compilation of twenty nine essays focuses on the differences that a Christian worldview makes for the disciplines or subject areas normally taught in liberal arts colleges and universities Three initial chapters of introductory material are followed by twenty six essays each dealing with the essential elements or issues in the academic discipline involved These individual essays on each discipline are a unique element of this book These essays also treat some of the specific differences in perspective or procedure that a biblically informed Christian perspective brings to each discipline Christian Worldview and the Academic Disciplines is intended principally as an introductory textbook in Christian worldview courses for Christian college or university students This volume will also be of interest to Christian students in secular post secondary institutions who may be encountering challenges to their faith both implicit and explicit from peers or professors who assume that holding a strong Christian faith and pursuing a rigorous college or university education are essentially incompatible This book should also be helpful for college and university professors who embrace the Christian faith but whose post secondary academic background because of its secular orientation has left them inadequately prepared to intelligently apply the implications of their faith to their particular academic specialty Such specialists be they professors or upper level graduate students will find the extensive bibliographies of recent scholarship at the end of the individual chapters particularly helpful Downey and Porter present a unique contribution to the perennial question of how faith interacts with the academic disciplines Numerous factors contribute to this book's significance the common conviction that one's Christian beliefs ought to shape the contents of one's teaching the variety of perspectives and opinions and the wide range of academic disciplines under discussion The essays originating among the excellent faculty of Trinity Western University will deservedly be much
