Market reform financial decentralization and economic globalization have greatly accentuated China's social and regional inequalities Education is expected to address these inequalities in a context of rapid social change including the rise of an urban middle class changed status of women resurgence of ethnic identities growing rural to urban migration and lingering poverty in remote areas But some argue that state policies have not sufficiently addressed inequitable practices and that schools actually perpetuate and reproduce inequities giving rise to a new system of social stratification driven more by market forces than socialist principles Featuring all original previously unpublished material this volume examines this argument through analysis of selected aspects of educational stratification in China during the reform era Chapters focus on the new urban middle class poor rural residents the migrant population in urban areas rural girls and ethnic minorities The contributors are established scholars in the field and they build a conceptual framework for assessing the degree to which China's educational reforms are inclusive equitable and integrative across social categories and groups China and Globalization Doug Guthrie, 2012-06-14

Westernization and Communism on family and the impact of industrialization on rural markets He also analyzed the impact of public opinion and past culture on institutions therein revealing the circular nature of diffusion Perhaps most significant are Yang's insights on the role of religion in Chinese society Despite the common perception that China had no religion he uncovers the influence of classical Confucianism as the basis for many ethical value systems and follows its diffusion into state and kinship systems as well as Taoism and Buddhism Writing in the early years of Communism Yang had little hard data with which to test his theories The contributors to this volume expand upon Yang's groundbreaking approach and apply the model of diffusion to a rapidly evolving contemporary China providing a window into an increasingly modern Chinese society and its institutions
