Beating the Odds Justin Yifu Lin, Célestin Monga, 2017 How poor countries can ignite economic growth without waiting for global action or the creation of ideal local conditions Contrary to conventional wisdom countries that ignite a process of rapid economic growth almost always do so while lacking what experts say are the essential preconditions for development such as good infrastructure and institutions In Beating the Odds two of the world's leading development economists begin with this paradox to explain what is wrong with mainstream development thinking and to offer a practical blueprint for moving poor countries out of the low income trap regardless of their circumstances Justin Yifu Lin the former chief economist of the World Bank and Célestin Monga the chief economist of the African Development Bank propose a development strategy that encourages poor countries to leap directly into the global economy by building industrial parks and export processing zones linked to global markets Countries can leverage these zones to attract light manufacturing from more advanced economies as East Asian countries did in the 1960s and China did in the 1980s By attracting foreign investment and firms poor countries can improve their trade logistics increase the knowledge and skills of local entrepreneurs gain the confidence of international buyers and gradually make local firms competitive This strategy is already being used with great success in Vietnam Cambodia Bangladesh Mauritius Ethiopia Rwanda and other countries And the strategy need not be limited to traditional manufacturing but can also include agriculture the service sector and other activities Beating the Odds shows how poor countries can ignite growth without waiting for global action or the creation of ideal local conditions

Economic Planning and Social Justice in Developing Countries Ozay Mehmet, 2014-05-12 First published in 1978 this book was written at a time when belief was high in Western guided economic development of the emerging countries The success of Marshall Plan in war torn Europe generated a US led optimism that with generous inflows of aid and technical assistance the Third World could be won over in the Cold War The author s direct experience as a young academic economist in Cyprus Malaysia Uganda and Liberia led him to question this general optimism the reality on the ground in the developing world did not seem to match Western optimism Theories and blueprints made in the West did not fit the requirements of developing countries Higher production and better income distribution were inseparable twin objectives of developing nations That meant production of a higher national output must at the same time promote social justice Investment must create adequate jobs so that new entrants into rapidly expanding labor force could be gainfully employed Yet the dominant Western theories of development at the time in particular the Trickle Down Theory of Growth prescribed Growth First Distribution Later strategy Similarly Import Substitution Industrialization theories were emphasized at the expense of export led growth Dualistic Growth theories preached urban biased anti rural development This book was written as a rebuttal of such faulty theorizing and misguided professional technical assistance and the book s message is no less valid today than in the 1970 s
