Growing Up In The Peoples Republic Conversations Between Two Daughters Of Chinas Revolution:

Growing Up in the People's Republic W. Ye, 2005-12-10 In a conversational style and in chronological sequence Ye Weili and Ma Xiaodong recount their earlier lives in China from the 1950s to the 1980s a particularly eventful period that included the catastrophic Cultural Revolution Using their own stories as two case studies they examine the making of a significant yet barely understood generation in recent Chinese history They also reflect upon the mixed legacy of the early decades of the People s Republic of China PRC In doing so the book strives for a balance between critical scrutiny of a complex era and the sweeping rejection of that era that recent victim literature embraces Ultimately Ye and Ma intend to reconnect themselves to a piece of land and a period of history that have given them a sense of who they are Their stories contain intertwining layers of personal generational and historical experiences Unlike other memoirs that were written soon after the events of the Cultural Revolution Ye and Ma s narratives have been put together some twenty years later allowing for more critical distance The passage of time has allowed them to consider important issues that other accounts omit such as the impact of gender during this period of radical change in Chinese women s lives the 20th and 21st centuries it captures the phenomenon of scholars who after years of intellectual work and integration in their societies of origin are forced to seek rescue in foreign host societies The pressing urgency of the topic thus has an important historical background From escaping Russian intellectuals after 1917 to the protection of Jewish refugees during World War II Algerian intellectuals in contemporary history or persecuted academics from Turkey today Over the course of about a century categories of inclusion transnational relations and forms of agency of scholars at risk remained surprisingly stable and hence diachronously and synchronously comparable while they also adjusted flexibly to contemporary conditions This collective volume carves out this historical development and its recent expressions It brings together researchers in a vivid yet largely unconnected field of migration and refugee studies By developing a complex image of the origin of the global history and politics of protecting endangered scholars from the early 20th century until today the book contributes to research on academics in exile as a part of refugee research migration studies the history of higher education and the contemporary history of societies The interdisciplinary volume explores the phenomenon as a historical political and legal subject brings together scholars of forced migration and intellectual studies and includes currently affected scholars into those reflections

Hong Kong Martial Artists Daniel Miles Amos, 2021-03-24 This imaginative and innovative study by Daniel Miles Amos begun in 1976 and completed in 2020 examines sociocultural changes in the practices of Chinese martial artists in two closely related and interconnected southern Chinese cities Hong Kong and Guangzhou The initial chapters of the book compare how sociocultural changes from World War II to the mid 1980s affected the practices of Chinese martial artists in the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong and neighboring Guangzhou in mainland China. An analysis is made of how the practices of Chinese martial artists have been influenced by revolutionary sociocultural changes in both cities. In Guangzhou, the victory of the Chinese Communist Party led to the disappearance in the early 1950s of secret societies and kungfu brotherhoods. Kungfu brotherhoods reappeared during the Cultural Revolution and subsequently were transformed again after the death of Mao Zedong and China's opening to capitalism. In Hong Kong, dramatic sociocultural changes were set off by the introduction of manufacturing production lines by international corporations in the mid 1950s and the proliferation of foreign franchises and products. Economic globalization in Hong Kong has led to dramatic increases both in the territory's Gross Domestic Product and in cultural homogenization with corresponding declines in many local traditions and folk cultures including Chinese martial arts. The final chapters of the book focus on changes in the practices of Chinese martial arts in Hong Kong from the years 1987 to 2020, a period which includes the last decade of British colonial administration as well as the first quarter of a century of rule by the Chinese government.

Modernization as Lived Experiences Fengshu Liu, 2019-11-07. This book examines in a culturally and contextually sensitive way the particularity of what it means to be young in post-Mao China undergoing rapid and dramatic transformation by comparing childhood and youth experiences over three generations. The analysis draws on life history interviews with Beijing young men and women in their last upper secondary year, their parents, and their grandparents. The book offers a comprehensive coverage of the various aspects of life pertinent to youth experiences and compares each of these across three generations, treating them as interrelated and mutually affecting processes: childhood, intergenerational relationships, education, and future plans, gender, and sexuality. By offering both men's and women's accounts of their childhood and youth experiences, which for the three generations combined extend over nearly a century, the book sheds useful light on how gender and sexuality have evolved in China. Fengshu Liu concludes that the young generation's lives feature a maximization desire in sharp contrast to the two older generations' childhood and youth experiences. The book meticulously weaves rich ethnographic details and individual life stories into a larger and unfolding picture of historical, social, and cultural trends while providing critical insight into Chinese modernization and modernity against the backdrop of globalization. It can thus be an enjoyable read also for people beyond the academia interested in China's social and cultural transformation and its children and youth.
