Cities examines to what extent green infrastructure GI is being implemented in East and Southeast Asian cities The book reflects upon the integration of contemporary approaches to landscape planning alongside traditional forms of green space design and cultural understandings of the landscape in China Hong Kong Japan Singapore and South Korea Working from a multi locational perspective the book illustrates how political socio cultural economic and ecological factors influence the delivery of GI and the consequences of these decisions The book provides a set of best practice recommendations for the design development and management of greener urban areas It both explains how GI is being utilised in East and Southeast Asia to address climate change promote economic prosperity and support the development of more livable places and identifies future trends in its use It is a key resource for any practitioners students and academics working in landscape planning and green infrastructure in an Asian context Landscape Architecture ,1992 Global Change ,1993

Ecology, Planning, and Management of Urban Forests Margaret M. Carreiro,Yong-Chang Song,Jianguo Wu,2007-10-31 It has been increasingly recognized that trees and vegetation in urban areas provide a number of ecological services beyond beautifying cities The purpose of urban forestry is to use trees and natural habitat patches to ameliorate negative environmental impacts of cities and to contribute to the creation of more livable ecological sustainable co cities Ecology Planning and Management of Urban Forests takes an international approach to sharing knowledge about the management of urban forests that has been learned through studies in many different regions This allows the reader to evaluate methods and management that are appropriate for particular geographic environmental and socio political contexts Urban forests are also approached on regional and landscape scales to encompass more natural environments in and around cities rather than within arbitrary municipal boundaries The Tree Book Jeffrey G. Meyer,2004 A practical guide to selecting and maintaining the best trees for your yard and garden Growing Greener Cities Eugenie L. Birch,Susan M. Wachter,2011-09-02 Nineteenth century landscape architect Frederick Law Olmsted described his most famous project the design of New York s Central Park as a democratic development of highest significance Over the years the significance of green in civic life has grown In twenty first century America not only open space but also other issues of sustainability such as potable water and carbon footprints have become crucial elements in the quality of life in the city and surrounding environment Confronted by a U S population that is more than 70 percent urban growing concern about global warming rising energy prices and unabated globalization today s decision makers must find ways to bring urban life into balance with the Earth in order to sustain the natural economic and political environment of the modern city In Growing Greener Cities a collection of essays on urban sustainability and environmental issues edited by Eugenie L Birch and Susan M Wachter scholars and practitioners alike promote activities that recognize and conserve nature s ability to sustain urban life These essays demonstrate how partnerships across professional organizations businesses advocacy groups governments and individuals themselves can bring green solutions to cities from London to Seattle Beyond park and recreational spaces initiatives that fall under the green umbrella range from public transit and infrastructure improvement to aquifer protection and urban agriculture Growing Greener Cities offers an overview of the urban green movement case studies in effective policy implementation and tools for measuring and managing success Thoroughly illustrated with color graphs maps and photographs Growing Greener Cities provides a panoramic view of urban sustainability and environmental issues for green minded city planners policy makers and citizens

Trees of Michigan and the Upper Great Lakes Norman Foster Smith,1995 Of Michigan s great wealth of natural resources few have been more important in the past or are more highly valued today than our forests and the trees which compose them Not only are they a continuous source of raw materials for industry and agriculture but they affect the climate water resources and soil purify our air furnish food and shelter for wildlife and are indispensable to our vast recreational and scenic areas They form a basic part of our diverse natural environment our biodiversity Their protection and management are vital to the state s wellbeing Industries which depend upon trees for their existence are major employers and rank high in the state s economy The annual production and manufacture of forest products is measured in billions of dollars The recreation industry including vacation travel resorts food lodging hunting fishing and camping is likewise a multi billion dollar a year business Equally important is the intangible wealth which trees bring to us through sheer enjoyment of beauty and love of nature Whether in field fencerow woodlot or forest or along highways rural roads urban streets or greenbelts this bounty is ours for the taking We have only to picture ourselves without trees to appreciate this value
