literary texts have an eschatology too a part in God's purpose for the cosmos. They with all creation move toward participation in the new creation in the Trinity's expanding creative love. This eschatological future for texts impacts how we understand meaning making from the level of semiology to that of hermeneutics. This book tells the story of how readers participate in the future of the word, the eschatology of texts. If texts have a future in the kingdom of God, then readers' engagements with them, everything from preservation and utterance to translation, criticism and call and response, can cultivate those futures in the love of the Trinity. Kriner explores how the fallenness and failures of texts alongside readers' own failures while seeming to challenge the future of the word ultimately point to reading as a posture of reconciliation in which reader and text meet in the Maranatha of all text. A Spiritual Treasury for the Children of God William Mason, 1803

The biblical illustrator: or, Anecdotes [&c.] on the verses of the Bible, by J.S. Exell Joseph Samuel Exell, 1886

Spiritual Growth A.W. Pink, Rev. Terry Kulakowski, Editor, 2015-11-28. Spiritual growth is a mystery and is more evident in some than in others. The more the Holy Spirit shines upon the mind and puts forth His life-giving influences in the heart, so much the more sin is seen, felt and loathed as the greatest of all evils. And this is an evidence of spiritual growth, namely to hate sin as sin and to abhor it on account of its contrariety to the nature of God. The Works of Nathanael Emmons, D.D.

Nathanael Emmons, 1842. An Exposition with Practical Observations continued upon the thirty-eighth, thirty-ninth, fortieth, forty-first, and forty-second ... chapters of the Book of Job: being the substance of fifty-two lectures, etc. [With the text.] Joseph CARYL, 1666. A Spiritual Treasury for the Children of God ...
