Growth Sage Library Of Social Research 167:

Pure Strategy Everett Dolman, 2012-11-12 A stimulating new inquiry into the fundamental truth of strategy its purpose place utility and value This new study is animated by a startling realization the concept of strategic victory must be summarily discarded This is not to say that victory has no place in strategy or strategic planning The outcome of battles and campaigns are variables within the strategist s plan but victory is a concept that has no meaning there To the tactical and operational planner wars are indeed won and lost and the difference is plain Success is measurable failure is obvious In contrast the pure strategist understands that war is but one aspect of social and political competition an ongoing interaction that has no finality Strategy therefore connects the conduct of war with the intent of politics It shapes and guides military means in anticipation of a panoply of possible coming events In the process strategy changes the context within which events will happen In this new book we see clearly that the goal of strategy is not to culminate events to establish finality in the discourse between states but to continue them to influence state discourse in such a way that it will go forward on favorable terms For continue it will This book will provoke debate and stimulate new thinking across the field and strategic studies that major uncertainties exist about the quality of population and death data for the elderly in the United States as a result of coverage and content errors in the censuses and death registration Furthermore different patterns appear to exist for the two major racial groupings in the United States whites and African Americans The book evaluates the consistency of reported data between the two major sources of data for calculation of mortality statistics in the United States censuses and death registration The focus is on the older population aged 60 and above where mortality trends have the greatest impact on social programs and where data quality is most problematic Bulletin of the Russell Sage Foundation Library Russell Sage Foundation. Out of Control Jaber F. Gubrium,1992-03-30 In a unique comparative ethnography of two family therapy programs Gubrium deftly shows how differing organizational perceptions make visible the social construction of domestic disorder Contrasting images of home life one viewing domestic order as a system of authority the other as a configuration of emotional bonds serve to highlight different senses of the family as being out of control and to recommend alternate forms of intervention The idea that the reality of home life and domestic troubles are embedded in organizational activities and institutional images is an important commentary on the understanding of domestic life and the postmodern family Out of Control provides stimulating reading for professionals and students in clinical psychology family therapy family studies sociology and qualitative methods The American Library Annual ,1917 Elder Abuse Work
