Birdy Jess Vallance,2015-07-02 A darkly compulsive tale of friendship and obsession Frances Bird has been a loner for so long that she s given up on ever finding real friendship But then she s asked to show a new girl around school and she begins to think her luck could finally be changing Eccentric talkative and just a little bit posh Alberta is not at all how Frances imagined a best friend could be But the two girls click immediately and it s not long before they are inseparable Frances could not be happier As the weeks go on Frances finds out more about her new best friend her past her secrets her plans for the future and she starts to examine their friendship more closely Is it perhaps just too good to be true Beth Jeffery Young,2020-12-17 A black widow spider kills beauty every time it eats But in itself it s beautiful People who say that high school is the best time to live are too wrapped up in themselves to realize they are not the center of the world and too stupid to admit that they will not live forever Being a teenager is tough Having to live in a world as a seventeen year old girl is even harder Beth Davis and Marjorie Williams were best friends who began high school as teenagers but only one would survive to be a woman Beth was a Christian Marjorie was not When Beth succumbed to spinal meningitis leaving behind a full and promising life Marjorie began to learn that being popular and physically beautiful were all illusions that pass in time and end in death Growing up in the late 1970s was a life of polyester dresses bell bottoms and fake IDs Kids experimented with marijuana sex and cocaine which seemed to wait outside like the door prize on their eighteenth birthday Disco was not a myth and Barry Manilow s Copacabana was a hit Seeing young women at clubs in nice dresses and clean cut boys with styled hair was a pleasant change from the hippie generation As Neil Sedaka would later write They had groove they had feeling The perfect cloister inside the high school bubble shielded an aspiring generation from most of the heartaches of reality Then death struck down Beth without warning and youth was shattered leaving an empty shell Just like the spider devours the butterfly leaving behind only beautiful wings so does spinal meningitis leave a fallen little girl As life goes on in nature so do goodness and love survive the human heart Marjorie learned she needed Jesus
