Growing Up in an Urbanizing World Louise Chawla, 2016-05-13 Half the world's children live in cities and the proportion is growing. Their environment critically determines their futures and the world they will make as adults. This text by an interdisciplinary team of international child environment authorities explores how crucial the relationship of the young and their surroundings is. Covering eight countries it shows the enormous benefits for them for the wider society and for the future of involving children especially from underprivileged communities in planning and implementing urban improvements. It continues and updates Kevin Leech's pioneering 1970s MIT project Growing Up in Cities. Growing Up in an Urbanising World Louise Chawla, 2002 First Published in 2001 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

Growing Up in an Urbanizing World Louise Chawla, 2016-05-13 Half the world's children live in cities and the proportion is growing. Their environment critically determines their futures and the world they will make as adults. This text by an interdisciplinary team of international child environment authorities explores how crucial the relationship of the young and their surroundings is. Covering eight countries it shows the enormous benefits for them for the wider society and for the future of involving children especially from underprivileged communities in planning and implementing urban improvements. It continues and updates Kevin Leech's pioneering 1970s MIT project Growing Up in Cities. Children, Childhood and Cultural Heritage Kate Darian-Smith, Carla Pascoe, 2013 Explores how the everyday experiences of children and their imaginative and creative worlds are collected, interpreted and displayed in museums and on monuments and represented through objects and cultural lore. Children and their Urban Environment Claire Freeman, Paul Tranter, 2012-10-02 In our fast changing urban world the impacts of social and environmental change on children are often overlooked. Children and their Urban Environment examines these impacts in detail looking at the key activities, spaces and experiences children have and how these can be managed to ensure that children benefit from change. The authors highlight the importance of planners, architects and housing professionals in creating positive environments for children and involving them in the planning process. They argue that children's lives are becoming simultaneously both richer and more deprived and that despite apparently increasing wealth disparities between children are increasing further. Each chapter includes international examples of good practice and policy innovations for redressing the balance in favour of child supportive environments. The book seeks to embrace childhood as a time of freedom, social engagement and environmental adventure and to encourage creation of environments that better meet the needs of children. The authors argue that in doing so we will build more sustainable neighbourhoods, cities and societies for the future. Understanding Urban Ecosystems Alan R. Berkowitz, Charles H. Nilon, Karen S. Hollweg, 2003 Nowhere on Earth is the challenge for ecological understanding greater and yet more urgent than in those parts of the globe where human activity is most intense: cities. This book is a first of its kind effort to bring together leaders in the biological, physical and social dimensions of urban ecosystem research with leading education researchers administrators and practitioners to show how an understanding of urban ecosystems is vital for urban dwellers to grasp the fundamentals of ecological and environmental science and to understand their own environment

Environment and Urbanization International Institute for Environment & Development, 2002 Theorising Posthuman Childhood Studies Karen Malone, Marek Tesar, Sonja Arndt, 2020-11-05 This book is a genealogical foregrounding and performance of conceptions of children and their childhoods over time We acknowledge that children's lives are embedded in worlds both inside and outside of structured schooling or institutional settings and that this relationality informs how we think about what it means to be a child living and experiencing childhood The book maps the field by taking up a cross disciplinary genealogical niche to offer both an introduction to theoretical underpinnings of emerging theories and concepts and to provide hands on examples of how they might play out This book positions children and their everyday lived childhoods in the Anthropocene and focuses on the interface of children's being in the everyday spaces and places of contemporary communities and societies In particular this book examines how the shift towards posthuman and new materialist perspectives continues to challenge dominant developmental social constructivist and structuralist theoretical approaches in diverse ways to help us to understand contemporary constructions of childhoods It recognises that while such dominant approaches have long been shown to limit the complexity of what it means to be a child living in the contemporary world the traditions of many Eurocentric theories have not addressed the diversity of children's lives in the majority of countries or in the Global South Youth in Cities Marta Tienda, William Julius Wilson, 2002-11-11 Whether in the ghettos of the United States the barrios of Brazil or the ethnic neighborhoods of Germany and Lebanon a growing number of urban youth find themselves marginalized from the social mainstream facing problems of fragile families segregation little or no education and involvement in illegal activities Both rich and poor countries are failing to meet the needs of their urban youth owing to weak institutional frameworks coupled with global economic restructuring that undermines traditional ways of earning a living Youth in Cities compares the circumstances of urban youth cross nationally illustrating the formidable challenges faced by young people trying to define their place in a rapidly changing world Using both comparative evidence and case studies this volume illustrates the common needs of youth throughout the world and makes a case for the role of youth as creative social assets and positive forces for social change Creating Child Friendly Cities Brendan Gleeson, Neil Sipe, 2006-11-22 First Published in 2006 Leading planning and geography authors present this comprehensive assessment of the extent to which the physical and social make up of Western cities accommodates and nourishes the needs of children and youth Examining the areas of planning design social policy transport and housing Creating Child Friendly Cities outlines strengths and deficiencies in the processes that govern urban development and change from the perspective of children and youth Issues explored include children's view of the city and why this is unique the obesity epidemic is it caused by cities the journey to school and children's transport needs generally With illustrations and case studies Creating Child Friendly Cities presents planning professionals with a solid case for child friendly cities and an action plan to create places for children to play
