Hunter-Gatherers of the Congo Basin Barry S. Hewlett, 2014-05-23 The forest foragers of the Congo Basin known collectively as Pygmies are the largest and most diverse group of active hunter gatherers remaining in the world At least fifteen different ethno linguistic groups exist in the Congo Basin with a total population of 250 000 to 350 000 individuals Extensive knowledge about these groups has accumulated in the last forty years but readers have been forced to piece together what is known from many sources French Japanese American and British researchers have conducted the majority of the research each national research group has its own academic traditions history and publications Here leading academic authorities from diverse national traditions summarize recent research on forest hunter gatherers The volume explores the diversity and uniformity of Congo Basin hunter gatherer life by providing detailed but accessible overviews of recent research It represents the first book in over twenty five years to provide a comprehensive and holistic overview of African forest hunter gatherers Chapters discuss the cultural variation in characteristic features of Congo Basin hunter gatherer life such as their yodeled polyphonic music pronounced egalitarianism multiple child caregiving and complex relations with neighboring farming groups Other contributors address theoretical issues such as why Pygmies are short how tropical forest hunter gatherers live without the carbohydrates they receive from neighboring farmers and how hunter gatherer children learn to share so extensively

Archaeology of African Plant Use Chris J Stevens, Sam Nixon, Mary Anne Murray, Dorian Q Fuller, 2016-07 The first major synthesis of African archaeobotany in decades this book significantly advances our knowledge of relationship between agriculture and social complexity

Plants and People in the African Past Anna Maria Mercuri, A. Catherine D'Andrea, Rita Fornaciari, Alexa Höhn, 2018-07-31 There is an essential connection between humans and plants cultures and environments and this is especially evident looking at the long history of the African continent This book comprising current research in archaeobotany on Africa elucidates human adaptation and innovation with respect to the exploitation of plant resources In the long term perspective climatic changes of the environment as well as human impact have posed constant challenges to the interaction between peoples and the plants growing in different countries and latitudes This book provides an insight into overview of the manifold routes people have taken in various parts Africa in order to make a decent living from the provisions of their environment by bringing together the analyses of macroscopic and microscopic plant remains with ethnographic botanical geographical and linguistic research The numerous chapters cover almost all the continent countries and were prepared by most of the scholars who study African archaeobotany i e the complex and composite history of plant uses and environmental transformations during the Holocene

Tradition, Archaeological Heritage Protection and Communities in the Limpopo Province of South Africa Innocent Pikirayi, 2011 This book captures community voices in matters relating to their relationship with specific archaeological heritage sites and landscapes in the Limpopo Province of South Africa Focusing on the stonewalled archaeological heritage associated with Venda speakers and the reburial in 2008 of human remains excavated by the University of Pretoria from the cultural landscape of Mapungubwe the book attempts to establish why archaeology and cultural heritage conservation struggle for relevance in South Africa today In articulating the relevance of archaeology in South Africa in particular and southern Africa in general and in the context of public or community based archaeology the book explores how communities and the public interact use and negotiate with their pasts The research critiques the notion of archaeological heritage conservation and attempts to understand cultural heritage conservation from the perspectives of descendant communities The book further exposes the conflict between cultural heritage protection efforts and modern development and questions the role of such efforts given the challenges of unemployment social inequality and poverty in democratic South Africa The book is also about community engagement in archaeology specifically in matters relating to access to cultural heritage resources This study suggests that there is scope for community archaeology to take centre stage and drive future directions in archaeology if archaeologists change their approach in dealing with communities Researchers are challenged in this study to rethink the notion of heritage to debate the objectives behind cultural heritage conservation and to critically reexamine the relevance of archaeology today This study suggests that the conflicting positions between heritage managers archaeologists and descendant communities may be resolved through sharing of tradition with the present

World Forests from Deforestation to Transition? Matti Palo, Heidi Vanhanen, 2012-12-06 This book addresses global and subnational issues concerning the world's forests societies and environment from an independent and non governmental point of view Cooperation on a global scale is not only commendable it is essential if solutions to the problems facing the world's forests are to be found To achieve this modern science needs to draw a clearer picture of relationships between forests human activity and the environment and of the consequences of environmental change for the societies development and growth There are several partly intermingled evolutionary forest transitions underway the slow transition from forest area decrease to an increase in the North while deforestation and degradation continues in the South Although not all deforestation is considered negative serious social economic and environmental costs may be associated with excessive deforestation Deforestation control is just the first step on the stony path towards sustainable forest management The forest management transition refers to the shift in the utilization towards managed semi natural secondary forests and plantation forests There are some signs in the North of the forest paradigm shift from sustainable yield to forest ecosystem concepts How deforestation can be tackled and how these concurrent transitions are effected will have profound implications for the future These processes involve several challenges with South North dimensions A search for an optimum mix of public policies and markets is a global priority both as a forest policy issue and as an inter sectoral item on the political agenda Deforestation and transition is discussed here by a team of 14 scientists from both the North and the South This book offers knowledge facts and information about world forests society and environment to help us towards equity in our use of the global forest to create a clearer vision of the world

Archaeology and Language II Roger Blench, Matthew Spriggs, 2003-09-02 Using language to date the origin and spread of food production Archaeology and Language II represents groundbreaking work in synthesizing two disciplines that are now seen as interlinked linguistics and archaeology This volume is the second part of a three part survey of innovative results emerging from their combination Archaeology and historical linguistics have largely pursued separate tracks until recently although their goals can be very similar While there is a new awareness that these disciplines can be used to complement one another both rigorous methodological awareness and detailed case studies are still lacking in the literature This three part survey is the first study to address this Archaeology and Language II examines in some detail how archaeological data can be interpreted through linguistic hypotheses This collection demonstrates the possibility that where archaeological sequences are reasonably well known they might be tied into evidence of language diversification and thus produce absolute chronologies Where there is evidence for migrations and expansions these can be explored through both disciplines to produce a richer interpretation of prehistory An important part of this is the origin and spread of food production which can be modelled through the spread of both plants and words for them Archaeology and Language II will be of interest to researchers in linguistics archaeologists and anthropologists Archaeology and Language: Correlating archaeological and linguistic hypotheses Roger Blench, Matthew Spriggs, 1998 Using language to date the origin and spread of food production Archaeology and Language II represents groundbreaking work in synthesizing two disciplines that are now seen as interlinked linguistics and archaeology This volume is the second part of a three part survey of innovative results emerging from their combination Archaeology and historical linguistics have largely pursued separate tracks until recently although their goals can be very similar While there is a new awareness that these disciplines can be used to complement one another both rigorous methodological awareness and detailed case studies are still lacking in the literature This three part survey is the first study to address this Archaeology and Language II examines in some detail how archaeological data can be interpreted through linguistic hypotheses This collection demonstrates the possibility that where archaeological sequences are reasonably well known they might be tied into evidence of language diversification and thus produce absolute chronologies Where there is evidence for migrations and expansions these can be explored through both disciplines to produce a richer interpretation of prehistory An important part of this is the origin and spread of food production which can be modelled through the spread of both plants and words for them Archaeology and Language II will be of interest to researchers in linguistics archaeologists and anthropologists The Atlantic Slave Trade Jeremy Black, 2022-12-30 Originally published as a collection in 2006 this volume looks at the eighteenth century which saw the high point of the Atlantic slave trade It contains essays which examine the commercial and financial structure of the British slave trade the contribution of other European countries to the trade and the effects of the trade on West and West Central Africa The volume also has an introduction by the editor commenting on the contribution each essay makes Food and Language Richard Hosking, 2010 Essays on food and language from the Proceedings of the Oxford Symposium on Food and Cooking 2009 Food, Famine and Fertilizers Seshadri Kannan, 2009-03 The Origins and Development of African Livestock Roger Blench, Kevin MacDonald, 2006-01-27 Of particular interest to those studying the history of the African continent this book takes its place as a standard reference in the field of livestock studies African Connections Peter Mitchell, 2005

From the exodus of early modern humans to the growth of African diasporas Africa has had a long and complex relationship with the outside world More than a passive vessel manipulated by external empires the African experience has been a complex mix of internal geographic environmental sociopolitical and economic factors and regular interaction with outsiders Peter Mitchell attempts to outline these factors over the long period of modern human history to find their commonalities and development over time He examines African interconnections through Egypt and Nubia with the Near East through multiple Indian Ocean trading systems through the trans Saharan trade and through more recent incursion of Europeans The African diaspora is also explored for continuities and resistance to foreign domination Commonalities abound in the African experience as do complexities of each individual period and interrelationship Mitchell's sweeping analysis of African connections place the continent in context of global prehistory and history The book should be of interest not only to Africanists but to many other archaeologists historians geographers linguists social scientists and their students
