Growing Expectations:

Rising Expectations Arthur Emery Farnsley, 2003 Rising Expectations examines the current attempts to enlist religious congregations as partners in social services and community development. It highlights stark demographic realities about urban congregations in order to challenge current assumptions about welfare reform and to encourage realistic expectations for the future. Both governmental officials and civic leaders are calling on religious congregations to become more active partners in social welfare reforms especially through Charitable Choice. Based on research conducted in Indianapolis, Indiana, Farnsley examines the context for those changes and evaluates the current and potential role for congregations as community development agencies and social service providers. Farnsley begins with an assessment of congregations seen as one interdependent piece in a complex urban environment. He then deals with the three basic assumptions about congregations that drive contemporary faith-based reforms: How well do congregations know their neighbors? Is smaller better? And can congregations impart values? Finally, the book considers plans for future implementation or expansion of reform.

The Academic Health Center Don Detmer, Elaine Steen, 2005-05-12 The leadership and management of academic health centers present challenges as complex as any in the corporate environment. A consensus is emerging about their integrated mission of education, research, and service, and this book, first published in 2005 and focusing on value-driven management, provides a truly comprehensive review of these issues available based on reports produced by the Blue Ridge Academic Health Group, which has developed a framework for meeting the challenges of improving health in the 21st century. It also contains invited commentaries and case studies from leading authorities in and beyond the United States. It identifies the public policies and organizational practices required to maximise the health status of individuals and the population and highlights innovative practices. It is essential reading for managers and leaders of clinical and basic science departments in academic health centers and for all those involved in health systems management studies.
