There given seals are those of the Grimoire of Azazel, a medieval French Grimoire, translated in the twentieth century by S.L. MacGregor Mathers, that possibly had its origins with the deposed Merovingian dynasty — support the bloodline of Yeshua Ben Padish — and found used by the Knights Templar under the Catholic Order of the Lion as such they may also reflect the ancient Gnostic doctrines of the Essenes recovered by the Templars during their excavations at Herod's Temple. Good evidence for this comes from the mention of the repentant archer Sakketh in the seal of Michael. It is also curious to note that these seals were meant to be printed on paper, since they are given with color instructions (as they appear used) rather than those for metallurgy, as was then more common, and without elaborate inscriptions. Aside from meditation their conjuring is unknown, and their cipher lost. Since several of them derive from the apocryphal of Enoch, it is likely that they do derive from the same mystery as Ben Padish's Angel Scroll, and that are probably copied from descriptions of their original Hebrew and Greek characters.
