

Caring for the environment: Teacher guidance

This guidance accompanies two lessons for key stage 1, produced in association with the Environment Agency. The lessons support pupils to recognise why it is important to care for the environment and to learn simple ways they can look after plants and animals. They also introduce some of the roles of people who work at the Environment Agency. Please read this guidance first, before teaching the lessons.

Preparing to teach

These lessons are not designed to be taught in isolation and should form part of your PSHE education programme. They should be embedded within other learning on caring for the environment, or on taking responsibility. They also introduce key stage 1 pupils to some of the work and different jobs that adults do, that help care for the environment.

Who are the Environment Agency?

The Environment Agency works to protect and improve the environment. They help people and wildlife adapt to climate change and reduce its impact, including flooding, drought, sea level rise and coastal erosion. They improve the quality of our water, land and air by tackling pollution, and work with businesses to help them comply with environmental regulations. A healthy and diverse environment enhances people's lives and contributes to economic growth. The Environment Agency work as part of the Defra group (Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs), with the rest of government, local councils, businesses, civil society groups and local communities to create a better place for people and wildlife.

Why these lessons are important

Lesson 1: Caring for the environment: everyone is responsible

Environmental challenges such as climate change and loss of biodiversity are widely reported and discussed. The concepts are complex for key stage 1 pupils, so this lesson focuses on the importance of the natural environment, ways they can help care for it and the animals that live in it. The lesson helps pupils to appreciate and value the world around them and recognise that everyone can help take care of animals and the environment, even with the smallest and most basic of actions.

Lesson 2: Caring for the environment: people and jobs

The Environment Agency employs people with a diverse range of backgrounds and skills, all with the common aim to protect and improve the environment. This lesson introduces key stage 1 pupils to some of these roles and the kind of work that they do. Pupils may also consider hobbies or volunteering opportunities to learn about, or get involved in, environmental activities.
