International Handbook of Educational Policy Nina Bascia, Alister Cumming, Amanda Datnow, Kenneth Leithwood, David Livingstone, 2008-05-14 Nina Bascia Alister Cumming Amanda Datnow Kenneth Leithwood and David Livingstone This Handbook presents contemporary and emergent trends in educational policy research in over fty chapters written by nearly ninety leading researchers from a number of countries It is organized into ve broad sections which capture many of the current dominant educational policy foci and at the same time situate current understandings historically in terms of both how they are conceptualized and in terms of past policy practice The chapters themselves are empirically grounded providing illustrations of the conceptual implications c tained within them as well as allowing for comparisons across them The se re exivity within chapters with respect to jurisdictional particularities and c trasts allows readers to consider not only a range of approaches to policy analysis but also the ways in which policies and policy ideas play out in different times and places. The sections move from a focus on prevailing policy tendencies through increasingly critical and outsider perspectives on policy. They address in turn the contemporary strategic emphasis on large scale reform, substantive emphases at several levels on leadership and governance, improving teacher quality and conceptualizing learning in various domains around the notion of literacies and concluding finally with a contrasting topic workplace learning which has had less policy attention and thus allows readers to consider both the advantages and disadvantages of learning and teaching under the bright gaze of policy.

Cultural Education - Cultural Sustainability

Zvi Bekerman, Ezra Kopelowitz, 2008-02-06. This volume is a path breaking contribution to the study of efforts of diaspora indigenous and minority groups broadly defined to use education formal and informal to sustain cultural continuity while grappling with the influences and demands of wider globalizing, nationalizing or other homogenizing and assimilatory forces. Particular attention is given to groups that use educational elements other than second language teaching alone in programs to sustain their particular cultural traditions. The focus of the book on cultural sustainability changes the nature of questions posed in multicultural education from those that address the opening of boundaries to issues of preserving boundaries in an open yet sustainable way. As forced and elective immigration trends are changing the composition of societies and the educational systems within them, bringing a rich diversity of cultural experience to the teaching learning process, diaspora indigenous and minority groups are looking more and more for ways to sustain their cultures in the context of wider socio political influences. This volume is a first opportunity to consider critically multicultural efforts in dialogue with educational options that are culturally particularistic but at the same time tolerant. Academics will find this an excellent reference book. Practitioners will draw inspiration in learning of others efforts to sustain cultures and will engage in critical reflection on their own work vis vis that of others. Teachers will realize they do not stand alone in their educational efforts and will uncover new strategies and methodologies through which to approach their work.

How Black and Working Class Children Are Deprived of Basic Education in Canada Bairu Sium, 2014-04-03 This book is the culmination of twenty four years of research It explores the thematic intersections of race class immigration and the potential of building student centered classrooms Of course the building of a truly student centered is itself a slow and contested process Over the years progressive changes towards more inclusive education made by some governments were dismantled by others and have left disadvantaged children where they were before the study was launched In the meantime the system has perfected the process of streaming minority children to dead end courses that betray the social and economic mobility advertised to them This book examines the moments and positions of educational betrayal in which racialized and working class students disproportionately find themselves For many at that point the only option is to drop out of school and engage in the drug trade or other lifestyles that put them at further risk This is a longitudinal study of a kind with respect to reform and changes retained in education It started with eight months observation of a split level grade five and six classroom in September 1986 That was instrumental in identifying the uphill battle that black working class and new immigrant children and their parents were facing to secure the education they deserved Through continued reviews observation and follow up interviews change or lack of it was traced The results call for urgent overhaul of the way education is provided to all children The book ends with suggestions to effect change Academy Awad Ibrahim, Tamari Kitossa, Malinda S. Smith, Handel Kashope Wright, 2022-02-02 The essays in Nuances of Blackness in the Canadian Academy make visible the submerged stories of Black life in academia. They offer fresh historical, social, and cultural insights into what it means to teach, learn, research, and work while Black. In daring to shift from margin to centre, the book's contributors confront two overlapping themes. First, they resist a singular construction of Blackness that masks the nuances and multiplicity of what it means to be and experience the academy as Black people. Second, they challenge the stubborn durability of anti-Black tropes, the dehumanization of Blackness, persistent deficit ideologies, and the tyranny of low expectations that permeate the dominant idea of Blackness in the white colonial imagination. Operating at the intersections of discourse and experience, contributors reflect on how Blackness shapes academic pathways, ignites complicated and often difficult conversations, and reimagines Black pasts, presents, and futures. This unique collection contributes to the articulation of more nuanced understandings of the ways in which Blackness is made, unmade, and remade in the academy and the implications for interrelated dynamics across and within post-secondary education. Black communities in Canada and global Black diasporas.
