Educating Women for a Changing World Kate Hevner Mueller, 1954 Educating Women for a Changing World was first published in 1954 Scores of books and articles have been written about the problems the needs and the potentialities of modern women What can education do to solve these problems Shall we give women the same education as men Shall we educate women for family responsibilities or for work outside the home In presenting her philosophy and basic program for women's education Mrs Mueller stresses the fact that women are not alike that their differences in fact overshadow their similarities She contends therefore that no one kind of education is suitable for all women In their infinite variety women present a multitude of different hopes and interests and aptitudes all to be included in educational patterns which will contribute to the fullest development of their lives And the woman of the future will be called upon to play multiple roles Mrs Mueller points out as she emphasizes the need for an educational program that will prepare women for careers in both the office and the home and as citizens of the community the nation and the world Women and the world they live in are constantly changing Mrs Mueller reminds us in an analysis of the conflicts between men and women that arise from social change In separate chapters she discusses education for earning for dating and mating for homemaking for politics for citizenship and for leisure

The Rise of Women in Higher Education Gary A. Berg, 2019-11-28 The story of the American university in the past half century is about the rise of women in participation as students faculty members college athletes and in subsequently changing the overall university culture for the better Now almost sixty percent of the overall college student population in America is female and still growing By the year 2000 women surpassed men worldwide in attendance at higher education institutions At the same time after years of a disproportionate dominant male professoriate female faculty members are now becoming the majority of university professors While top university presidents are still largely male women have achieved real gains in the overall administrative ranks and trustee positions In all areas of the university disparities still exist in terms of compensation and balance in key areas of the academy but the overall positive trend is clear Few to this date have recognized and chronicled this extraordinary change in college education one of society's fundamental and influential institutions For universities the test for the future is to make the changes needed in broad areas within higher education from financial aid to curriculum student activities and overall campus culture in order to better foster a newly empowered majority of women students Women's Education in the Third World Gail P. Kelly, Carolyn M. Elliott, 1983-06-30 Gail Kelly and Carolyn Elliott have assembled the latest and best available scholarship from a range of disciplines to illuminate the determinants nature and outcomes of women's education in third World nations This study focuses on the undereducation of women in Africa Asia Latin America and the Middle East delving into its causes changes in female education patterns and the significance of these changes to societies and to women's lives. Articles in this volume lay the foundation for further research by examining women's schooling from the novel perspective that the social and economic outcomes of women's education are shaped by gender sex systems that subordinate women to men. Women's Higher Education in the United States Margaret A. Nash, 2017-08-24 This volume presents new perspectives on the history of higher education for women in the United States. By introducing new voices and viewpoints into the literature on the history of higher education from the early nineteenth century through the 1970s, these essays address the meaning diverse groups of women have made of their education or their exclusion from education and delve deeply into how those experiences were shaped by concepts of race, ethnicity, religion, national origin. Nash demonstrates how an examination of the history of women's education can transform our understanding of educational institutions and processes more generally. Handbook of Higher Education in Japan Paul Snowden, 2025-10-01 Just as higher education (HE) in Europe had its beginnings in religious training for the priesthood, HE in feudal Japan too provided instruction for a religious life. But while the evolution to secular instruction was gradual in Europe, in Japan it came with a big bang: the opening of the country and consequent Westernization, and all that that involved in the mid 19th century. This first volume in the new Japan Documents Handbook series tells the story in 25 chapters of how Japan's HE system has become what it is now, ending with a very tentative glimpse into the rest of the 21st century. A variety of themes are covered by scholars: chapters that concentrate on governance look at the distinction between national public and private institutions; others consider important topics such as internationalization, student recruitment, and faculty mobility. More innovative topics include Women of Color Leading in Japanese Higher Education. All provide copious references to other authorities, but rather than just toe the conventional line, they include opinions and proposals that may be contentious or even revolutionary. The editor provides an overview of the subject and its treatment in an Introduction. Resources in Women's Educational Equity, 1980 Literature cited in AGRICOLA, Dissertations abstracts international, ERIC, ABI INFORM, MEDLARS, NTIS, Psychological abstracts, and Sociological abstracts. Selection focuses on education, legal aspects, career aspects, sex differences, lifestyle, and health. The findings presented in this study support the theories upon which the curriculum was designed and add a valuable contribution to the scholarship of educating women.

Higher Education for Women in Postwar America, 1945-1965 Linda Eisenmann, 2006-01-19 Outstanding Academic Title for 2007 Choice Magazine This history explores the nature of postwar advocacy for women's higher education acknowledging its unique relationship to the expectations of the era and recognizing its particular type of adaptive activism Linda Eisenmann illuminates the impact of this advocacy in the postwar era identifying a link between women's activism during World War II and the women's movement of the late 1960s Though the postwar period has been portrayed as an era of domestic retreat for women Eisenmann finds otherwise as she explores areas of institution building and gender awareness In an era uncomfortable with feminism this generation advocated individual decision making rather than collective action by professional women generally conceding their complicated responsibilities as wives and mothers By redefining our understanding of activism and assessing women's efforts within the context of their milieu this innovative work reclaims an era often denigrated for its lack of attention to women
