Planning Educational Facilities for the Next Century Glen I. Earthman, 2003-01-10 This book takes a systematic approach to planning educational facilities discussing in detail each phase of the process of planning capital projects and the responsibilities of those in the schools who make decisions regarding the buildings in which students learn The book also speaks to the moral responsibility of educators to ensure students are in safe functional and efficient structures Planning Educational Facilities for the Next Century covers it all from planning to hiring the architect to managing the construction phase

A Guide to Leading and Managing Indiana School Facilities Tom Dykiel, Charles Hobbs, William E. Roberson, 2009-08 When school buildings are aging a decision must be made as to whether to continue to maintain the existing building renovate building or build new Very seldom is extending the existing buildings life over building a new building If renovation costs exceed 50% of the cost of new construction it is better to build instead of renovating The taxpayers in your community will have much to say on whether to renovate or build new Much emphasis should be given to taxpayer input before the school board makes a final decision School administrators are responsible to the community for maintaining school buildings and they owe an explanation to the community of what has been done to protect existing school buildings This book is developed to help aspiring teachers who want to become principals business managers or superintendents that existing buildings need to be properly maintained and functional and can continue to serve the public for many years to come

Financing Schools and Educational Programs Al Ramirez, 2013 Al Ramirez writes on the subject of how the public schools in the United States are financed and how other funds are raised for educational programs in elementary and secondary schools A context for public school finance is provided throughout the volume by grounding each topic in historical policy political and common practice so the work spans both the theoretical and practical aspects of the subject matter The text is written primarily for graduate students in programs for education leadership administration policy studies public administration public finance and public accounting The content will also serve as a resource for practitioners and education policy leaders e g school board members foundation program officers legislators and policy analysts at the local state and national levels Each chapter is structured so as to enhance the book s value to pre service students preparing for entry level school administration positions as well as candidates for advanced degrees who need more research based theoretical content on school finance The author recognizes that each state has its own unique funding approach and guides readers to state resources that supplement the books content
