Fiction And The Social Contract Genocide Pornography And The Deconstruction Of History:

Fiction and the Social Contract Larry L. Langford, 1998 Although postmodernism has questioned the distinction between history and fiction it has not weakened it History is a discourse with necessary consequences Since Plato its distinction from fiction has been recognized as a fundamental aspect of the social contract and therefore as a matter of life and death The authority to designate what is real leads ultimately to the authority to decide when it is morally permissible to take a human life Controversies as diverse as the historians debate on the Holocaust and the feminist critique of pornography take as their starting point the need to resist those who would treat the past as a type of fiction that can be rewritten to further the aims of political or sexual oppression The International Fiction Review, 2003 Pornography and Sexual Representation Joseph W. Slade, 2001 A three volume reference guide to the available literature concerning pornography and sexual representation in America Science Fiction, Canonization, Marginalization, and the Academy Gary Westfahl, George Slusser, 2002-01-30 Science fiction occupies a peculiar place in the academic study of literature At a time when the canon is being consciously expanded and diversified and when there is growing scholarly interest in technology and popular culture works of science fiction are nonetheless marginalized by the academy So too many works of science fiction engage recognized canonical texts such as the Odyssey yet traditionalists within the academy have largely shunned the serious study of science fiction In this book expert contributors examine the traditional and continuing tendency to exclude science fiction from the literary canon In exploring this topic the book addresses many broader issues such as the nature of canon formation the role of journals in legitimizing academic inquiry and the cultural politics of academic gatekeeping
