Fifty Acres And A Poodle:

Fifty Acres and a Poodle Jeanne Marie Laskas, 2010-03-31 Jeanne Marie Laskas had dreams of life on a farm that she couldn't get out of her head. A dream of fleeing her otherwise happy urban life for fresh air and open space. A dream she would discover was about something more profound than that. A dream she never ever expected to come true. Until a hot summer afternoon led to a drive in the country where a place that had existed only in her fantasies turned out to be real and for sale. Fifty Acres And A Poodle. The place is almost too perfect to be believed but there it is, as pretty as a picture postcard farm with an Amish barn, a chestnut grove, and vistas so beautiful they take her breath away. And in that moment she knows that this is the spot where her future begins. So she drags her boyfriend Alex, a committed urban dweller with zero agricultural awareness who owns a poodle, into her scheme, hoping that love will somehow conquer all. But buying a postcard, fifty acres of scenery, and living on it are two entirely different matters. The questions seem endless: How long before the barn roof collapses? Should they buy sheep? Will the place be good for her writing and for her relationship with Alex? And is there any way to keep Betty the mutt and Marley the poodle from rolling in mud, leaves, and unidentified smelly remains? In this funny yet tender tale, Laskas shares what happens when you follow your dream and what happens when it's almost snatched away. Fifty Acres and a Poodle is a charming and surprisingly poignant memoir of Jeanne Marie Laskas's first year on Sweetwater Farm. It is a journey peopled by unforgettable characters: Billy, the local contractor who bulldozes her briars, takes her shopping for tractors, and advises her on buying a mule; Tim, the FedEx driver whose truck becomes Marley's obsession; and nearly his downfall, the local hunters who present her with an entire wardrobe of blaze orange hats. And Bob, the cat whose valiant fight for life gives her the courage to love. Jeanne Marie Laskas writes with exhilarating wit and extraordinary wisdom about life, love, and finding your true self on a farm. It's hard to say how a dream forms. Especially one like mine, which at first seemed so utterly random. It could have been a sailing boat to Tahiti, a dream to quit your job and hitchhike to Alaska, a dream. It was a fill-in-the-blank dream, born of an urge, not content. An urge for something new. I was thirty-seven years old. I lived on Eleventh Street, the last house on the right in South Side, a gentrified old mill town on the banks of the Monongahela River. I rented an office in downtown Pittsburgh, a fifteen-minute bike ride away, which is where I spent my days writing stories and magazine articles. I had a garden. I had a cat. I had a dog. And I had a farm dream, a fantasy swirling around in my head about moving to the country. Where in the world was this coming from? That's what I wondered. It might have made sense if I was a miserable person sick of my life. But I was not. I had a good life. It had taken me a long time to get it that way. A farm dream would have made sense. I supposed if I was at least the farm dream type: A person with some deep personal longing to churn butter. A person who had had city life forced upon her and now was determined to go be true to herself and live among the haystacks. A person who wore her hair in long braids, used Ivory soap, and liked to stencil her walls with pictures of little chickens and cows. A person who at minimum had a compost pile in her yard where she diligently threw lawn clippings and coffee grounds and eggshells and earned the right to use the word organic a lot But I was not that person I was not even sure what hay was or why anyone would stack it And if I composted anything it was only by mistake The Exact Same Moon Jeanne Marie Laskas,2009-02-04 In Fifty Acres and a Poodle Jeanne Marie Laskas described how she survived her first hilariously tumultuous year at Sweetwater Farm Now she returns with a funny touching and personal new memoir of what happens after your dream comes true With a picture postcard farm a wonderful marriage two mules and a new refrigerator that spits crushed ice what more can a girl ask for That s precisely the question Jeanne Marie asks herself as she and Alex settle into their new life at Sweetwater Farm Two years ago they left the city behind for a life filled with the practical often comical lessons of living close to the land and they never looked back Yet when her strong willed mom is hospitalized with a sudden and mysterious paralysis Jeanne Marie rushes home to Philadelphia and her extended sometimes chaotic but always loving family It s there that she realizes what is still missing from her life a family of her own Now it s a matter of bringing up the subject to her husband Alex fifteen years older and with adult children of his own who seems terrified that she s thinking of adopting a Chihuahua With warmth wisdom and unfailing humor Laskas tells the poignant story of her search for motherhood and what happens when a woman risks happily ever after for something even more precious As she tends to her own ailing mother Jeanne Marie discovers that the challenges and rewards of living with Mother Nature pale in comparison to those awakened by the nature of mothering The Exact Same Moon is filled with hilarious and heartwarming vignettes of people and a way of life you ll be glad you met From borrowing sheep to help mow the lawn and sitting in on the racy hay jokes at the Agway Equine Clinic to befriending the notorious old lady who holds the water rights to their future pond corrupting the neighbors with satellite TV and learning the fine art of going a calling Laskas proves once again that laughter love and wisdom are truly homegrown To Obama Jeanne Marie Laskas,2019-09-03 An insightful study of a president who listened to even his harshest critics with grace and humility The Washington Post NAMED ONE OF THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR BY GLAMOUR Every evening for eight years at his request President Obama was given ten handpicked letters written by ordinary American citizens the unfiltered voice of a nation from his Office of Presidential Correspondence He was the first president to interact daily with constituent mail and to archive it in its entirety The letters affected not only the president and his policies but also the deeply committed people who were tasked with opening and reading the millions of pleas rants thank yous and apologies that landed in the White House mailroom In To Obama Jeanne Marie Laskas interviews President Obama the letter writers themselves and the White House staff who sifted through the powerful moving and incredibly intimate narrative of America during the Obama years There is Kelli who saw her grandfathers finally marry legally after thirty five years together Bill a lifelong Republican whose attitude toward immigration reform was transformed when he met a boy escaping MS 13 gang leaders in El Salvador Heba a Syrian refugee who wants to forget the day the tanks rolled into her village Marjorie who grappled with disturbing feelings of racial bias
