examines the ideology of the discipline of English Literature in the light of the serious redefining work on England and Englishness that has been conducted in Political Studies in the last decade. He argues that English Literature emerges from the development of the state and that consequently it has suppressed the idea of the nation. His claim is that English Literature has lost its form since its methodology and canonicity depended so heavily on a constitutional form which can no longer be defended. He calls upon those working in English Literature to recognise that they are not really participating in the same discipline defined by the Burkean constitutional settlement even if they think of themselves as writing within the canon. His view is that a lack of appreciation of hard edged political factors have led to a continuant and regressive form of English Literature which tends to hang on to stifling methodologies. In its place he appeals for the creation of a more open ended inclusive internationalist and comparative literature of England. Neo-Tories Bernhard Dietz, 2018-05-31 The danger to British democracy in the interwar period came from a different source to that which has thus far been assumed. It came from a network of radical conservatives who challenged the political system and sought to replace it with an authoritarian corporate state. In this book Bernhard Dietz provides the first systematic analysis of this network and its members which are called Neo Tories. With strong links to the European right yet a minority back home this group of British conservatives are all the more fascinating today because it is on their ultimate failure that the success of British democracy rested. The Rise of Neoliberalism in Advanced Capitalist Economies M. Howard, J.E. King, 2008-06-24 In this unique and dramatic account of the rise of neoliberalism Howard and King consider the major features of historical materialism the factors which resulted in 19th and 20th century thinkers incorrectly predicting the long term decline of the market and the prospects for a reversal of neoliberalism in the 21st century.
