The first collection to explore infectious disease agriculture economics and the nature of science together Thanks to breakthroughs in production and food science agribusiness has been able to devise new ways to grow more food and get it more places more quickly There is no shortage of news items on hundreds of thousands of hybrid poultry each animal genetically identical to the next packed together in megabarns grown out in a matter of months then slaughtered processed and shipped to the other side of the globe Less well known are the deadly pathogens mutating in and emerging out of these specialized agro environments In fact many of the most dangerous new diseases in humans can be traced back to such food systems among them Campylobacter Nipah virus Q fever hepatitis E and a variety of novel influenza variants Agribusiness has known for decades that packing thousands of birds or livestock together results in a monoculture that selects for such disease But market economics doesn t punish the companies for growing Big Flu it punishes animals the environment consumers and contract farmers Alongside growing profits diseases are permitted to emerge evolve and spread with little check That is writes evolutionary biologist Rob Wallace it pays to produce a pathogen that could kill a billion people In Big Farms Make Big Flu a collection of dispatches by turns harrowing and thought provoking Wallace tracks the ways influenza and other pathogens emerge from an agriculture controlled by multinational corporations Wallace details with a precise and radical wit the latest in the science of agricultural epidemiology while at the same time juxtaposing ghastly phenomena such as attempts at producing featherless chickens microbial time travel and neoliberal Ebola Wallace also offers sensible alternatives to lethal agribusiness Some such as farming cooperatives integrated pathogen management and mixed crop livestock systems are already in practice off the agribusiness grid While many books cover facets of food or outbreaks Wallace's collection appears the first to explore infectious disease agriculture economics and the nature of science together Big Farms Make Big Flu integrates the political economies of disease and science to derive a new understanding of the evolution of infections Highly capitalized agriculture may be farming pathogens as much as chickens or corn

Masculinity and Place in American Literature since 1950 Vidya Ravi, 2019-05-15 American literature has long celebrated the figure of the self made man and the idea of establishing selfhood particularly male selfhood in nature However during the crisis of masculinity that swept across America in the middle of the twentieth century a generation of writers started exploring a different kind of a man This was a figure who was concerned not so much with the loss of the West or the desire to recover a wilderness but with how to live in an ordinary domesticated continent Masculinity and Place in American Literature since 1950 explores the role of place in negotiating reinforcing and subverting articulations of hegemonic masculinity in the work of four American writers from the latter part of the 20th century John Cheever John Updike Raymond Carver and Richard Ford The book argues that American fiction by white male writers between the 1950s and the present day is compelled by the troubled and troubling relationship between masculinity and place This relationship is deeply embedded in how ideals of masculinity are predicated upon the experience of the physical world and how the symbolic logic of masculinity is continually subverted by alternative conceptions of dwelling and ecological consciousness A Study of

Sexual Encounters Lee Wallace, 2018-05-31 European literary artistic and anthropological representation has long viewed the Pacific as the site of heterosexual pleasures The received wisdom of these accounts is based on the idea of female bodies unrestrained by civilization In a revisionist history of the Pacific zone and some of its preeminent Western imaginists

Lee Wallace suggests that the fantasy of the male body rather than of the free loving female provides the underlying libidinal structure for many of the classic encounter narratives from Cook to Melville The subject of Sexual Encounters is sexual fantasy particularly male homoerotic fantasy found in the literature and art of South Sea exploration colonization and settlement Working at the boundaries of a number of disciplines such as queer theory anthropology postcolonial studies and history Wallace engages in subversive readings of eighteenth and nineteenth century Pacific voyage journals Cook in Hawaii and a Russian expedition to the Marquesas an argument concerning Gauguin s treatment of female figures and a discussion of homosexuality and Samoan male to female transgenderism These phenomena Wallace asserts demonstrate the continuity and dissonance between Western and Pacific sexual categories She reconstructs Pacific history through the inevitable entanglement of metropolitan and indigenous sexual regimes and ultimately argues for the importance of the Pacific in defining modern sexual categories
