Prisons don't work but prisoners do. Prisons are often critiqued as unjust but we hear little about the daily labour of incarcerated workers: what they do, how they do it, who they do it for, and under which conditions. Unions protect workers fighting for better pay and against discrimination and occupational health and safety concerns but prisoners are denied this protection despite being the lowest paid workers with the least choice in what they do, the most vulnerable among the working class. Starting from the perspective that work during imprisonment is not rehabilitative, this book examines the reasons why people should care about prison labour and how prisoners have struggled to organize for labour power in the past. Unionizing incarcerated workers is critical for both the labour movement and struggles for prison justice; this book argues to negotiate changes to working conditions as well as the power dynamics within prisons themselves. INTERNATIONAL TRUE CRIME BESTSELLER An instant true crime classic about a brutal Nova Scotia murder for fans of Say Nothing and Furious Hours. Publishers Weekly Fascinating. A must read for all concerned about how humans manage to live together. Or not. Margaret Atwood. In his riveting and meticulously reported true crime book Silver, Donald Cameron offers an intricate narrative about a notorious small town crime: the 2013 murder of Phillip Boudreau by three upstanding citizens of Cape Breton Island. Phillip Boudreau seemed invincible, a miscreant who would plague the village forever as police frustration grew and budgets shrunk. But when two cousins and skipper Dwayne Samson saw Boudreau in his boat about to vandalize their lobster traps, they took matters into their own hands. Like so many times before, the small time criminal was about to cost them thousands of dollars out of their seasonal livelihood, so they took out a rifle and fired four shots. Was the Boudreau killing cold blooded murder, a direct reaction to credible threats, or the tragic result of local officials failing to protect the community? As many local people have said, if those fellows hadn't killed him, someone else would have. Cameron's searing, utterly gripping true crime story about one Nova Scotia community raises a disturbing question: Are there times when taking the law into your own hands is not only understandable but the responsible thing to do? In Defence of Home Places Mark R. Leeming, 2017-06-07

As environmental deterioration became a major political issue near the end of the twentieth century, activists in Nova Scotia stood together to defend the places they called home. They cooperated to protect local environments and economies but they disagreed about the causes of environmental problems, the role of humanity in nature, and the place of environmentalists in the political process. In Defence of Home Places examines the diversity of environmental activism in Nova Scotia, illustrating how radicals and conservatives combined efforts to achieve early legislative and social success. It also chronicles the debates and disagreements over fundamental principles that then weakened and divided the powerful environmental movement. Placing the evolution of Nova Scotian environmental activism within a broader theoretical framework, Mark R. Leeming considers its development in national and international contexts, examining the environmental movement itself along with the choices and tactics that brought about its greatest successes and failures
