LAWRENCE A. PATTERSON

THE GOLDEN TALES is a collection, from the various volumes of short stories by Anatole France, of a selection of the best-known tales, such as "The Procurator of Judea," "Olivier's Story," "Crainquebille," etc. No general principle has been followed in making this selection except to choose those tales most likely to amuse. In subject, they are varied; in form, they constitute the finest achievements of the great French writer's art. Readers of Anatole France will welcome the opportunity of possessing in a single beautiful volume so many of these exquisite stories.
