Littell,1888 Linotte Anaïs Nin,2014-09-02 This amazingly precocious diary of girlhood in the early twentieth century is filled with a special charm The Christian Science Monitor Born in Paris Anaïs Nin started her celebrated diary at age eleven when she was immigrating to New York with her mother and two young brothers The diary became her confidant her beloved friend in which she recorded her most intimate thoughts and kept watch on the state of her character Offering an amusing view of Nin's early life from age eleven to seventeen it is also a self portrait of an innocent girl who is transformed through her own insights into an enlightened young woman An enchanting portrait of a girl's constant search for herself will delight her admirers as well as new readers Library Journal One of the most extraordinary documents in the annals of literature Providence Sunday Journal The Early Diary is not merely an overture to the great performance It deserves our attention on its own as a revelation of the rites of passage of a young girl in the early part of the twentieth century and as an expression of the collision of cultures between Europe and America Los Angeles Times Preface by Joaquin Nin Culmell Miss Numè of Japan Onoto Watanna,2022-09-04 In Miss Num of Japan Onoto Watanna artfully weaves a narrative that explores the complex intersections of identity culture and gender against the backdrop of early 20th century Japan The novel employs a rich and lyrical prose style drawing the reader into an exoticized world where Western and Eastern sensibilities collide Watanna's keen observations and carefully crafted characters reflect the cultural tensions and romantic aspirations of the time as the protagonist navigates her dual heritage and the rigid social constraints imposed by her surroundings. The literature is heavily influenced by the burgeoning interest in Japan during the Meiji period marked by Western fascination with the noble savage archetype that often oversimplified the richness of Eastern traditions. Onoto Watanna, born in 1878 as the daughter of Japanese parents in Canada, drew from her unique upbringing to infuse her work with authentic cross-cultural insights. Her lived experiences and professional endeavors as a writer, journalist, and lecturer on Japanese culture provided her with a strong platform to challenge prevailing stereotypes and advocate for the nuanced representation of Asian women in the literary sphere. Her multifaceted identity as both an immigrant and an artist profoundly shaped the themes and perspectives of her writing, culminating in this innovative work. Miss Num of Japan is essential reading for those interested in the dynamics of cultural representation, the complexities of mixed identity, and the interrelation of East and West during a pivotal historical moment. The novel speaks powerfully to contemporary discussions of cultural hybridity and gender, making it relevant to modern audiences. It is a captivating exploration of self-discovery that invites readers to reflect on the ongoing dialogue between tradition and modernity.

The Construction of Authorship
Martha Woodmansee, Peter Jaszi, 1994. What is an author? What is a text? At a time when the definition of text is expanding and the technology whereby texts are produced and disseminated is changing at an explosive rate, the ways authorship is defined and rights conferred upon authors must also be reconsidered. This volume argues that contemporary copyright law, rooted as it is in a nineteenth-century Romantic understanding of the author as a solitary creative genius, may be inapposite to the realities of cultural production. Drawing together distinguished scholars from literature, law, and the social sciences, the volume explores the social and cultural construction of authorship as a step toward redefining notions of authorship and copyright for today's world. These essays, illustrating cultural studies in action, are aggressively interdisciplinary and wide-ranging in topic and approach. Questions of collective and collaborative authorship in both contemporary and early modern contexts are addressed. Other topics include moral theory and authorship, copyright and the balance between competing interests of authors and the public, problems of international copyright, musical sampling and its impact on fair use doctrine, cinematic authorship, quotation and libel, alternative views of authorship as exemplified by nineteenth-century women's clubs and by the Renaissance commonplace book, authorship in relation to broadcast media, and to the teaching of writing and the material dimension of authorship as demonstrated by Milton's publishing contract.
