Gold Juno Sword:

Gold Juno Sword: Martin Bowman, 2013-09-19 This is the final volume of a comprehensive five part work including a multitude of personal accounts of every aspect of the aerial operations on Gold Juno and Sword beaches during D Day It relays the sense of relief experienced as Allied troops gained a foothold on the continent of Europe after D Day both by the men caught up in the proceedings and the jubilant civilians on the home front By the end of June 875 000 men had landed in Normandy 16 divisions each for the American and British armies Although the Allies were well established on the coast and possessed all the Cotentin Peninsular the Americans had still not taken St Lo nor the British and Canadians the town of Caen originally a target for D Day German resistance particularly around Caen was ferocious but the end result would be similar to the Tunisian campaign More and more well trained German troops were thrown into the battle so that when the Allies did break out of Normandy the defenders lost heavily and lacked the men to stop the Allied forces from almost reaching the borders of Germany In continuing style Bowman pays respect to the men who fought in the skies above France on D Day This episode of Aviation history has never before been the focus of such detailed analysis the five volumes of this series act as a memorial to the individuals who played their own individual parts in the wider proceedings Far from being a mere operational record this is the story of the men behind the headlines the reality behind the iconic images of parachute drops and glider formations

D-DAY Gold Juno Sword Beach Eric Belloc, 2024-04-16 Terror and Triumph Pat Seward, 2011 World War II explores the elements of the war in broadly chronological order, not just on the battlefields but also on home fronts around the world. British Warship Losses in the Modern Era David Hepper, 2022-07-31 This important new reference work details all those ships and vessels of the Royal Navy, large and small, which were lost by accident or enemy action during the twentieth century, from the end of the First World War to the last years of the century. In all, the fates of over 2,000 ships and small craft are covered, from aircraft carriers and battleships to motor launches, harbour tenders, and tugs. Those vessels hired or purchased for wartime service, such as trawlers, paddle steamers, and yachts, are also listed. During wartime, ships are lost to their purpose to go in harm's way. Hostile gunfire, torpedoes, and mines were established threats throughout the period, while the increasing threat of air attack and the introduction of weapons employing new technology, such as influence-triggered mines, homing torpedoes, or air-launched guided weapons, added to the risks of operating in a hostile environment. Ships operating in extremely hazardous conditions, such as at Dunkirk in 1940 or Singapore in 1942, suffered heavy losses in brief, concentrated conflicts, but the long, continuous campaigns, such as the Atlantic convoys or the constant need to sweep for mines, also took their toll. Peacetime losses are dominated by submarine casualties, demonstrating the dangerous character of that service. To this may be added the hazardous nature of the sea itself when ships are lost in heavy weather, sometimes human error, or plain foolishness may play a part. The core of the book is taken up by those losses experienced during the Second World War, but peacetime losses and more recent conflicts, such as the Falklands War of 1982, are included. Arranged chronologically, every entry notes the outline details of the vessel, identifies the Commanding Officer where known, and gives a full and often harrowing account of the circumstances of the loss and the number of casualties. The details come from extensive original research using primary source material wherever possible, particularly the relevant War Diaries and the collected loss and damage reports, casualty reports, and reports of proceedings now in the National Archives. Wartime losses of the Dominions are included to ensure completeness. This comprehensive record of warship losses from all causes suffered by the Royal Navy over the past one hundred years is the first single volume work on the subject and represents a major milestone in naval research and publishing.
